Before you start

Read This First

This pack is written for one person: an Indian travel agent or tour operator who wants to answer faster, plan better and sell more, without letting AI put a wrong fact in front of a client. It is deliberately short on theory and long on things you can paste and use today. It is built for the 2026-27 winter season, but every prompt works all year.

There is one rule that runs through the whole pack. AI drafts, you verify. A chat model writes what sounds right, not what it has checked. It will happily name a hotel that has closed, a ferry that does not run in monsoon, a pass that is snowed shut, or a visa fee from two years ago. So the pack gives you two things together: prompts that make the draft good, and the verification habit that keeps the draft honest. Appendix E is the checklist that does the second job. Read it once before you send anything to a client.

Everything in the appendices was checked in October 2026 against the sources named on each page. Tax rules change; treat every tax figure as a starting point and confirm it with your chartered accountant. Visa, permit and seasonal-closure details must always be confirmed with the official source before you promise anything to a traveller.

Who this pack is for

Agencies and operators who plan and sell trips: domestic and outbound leisure, honeymoons, family holidays, group and fixed-departure tours, pilgrimage travel, corporate offsites and MICE, and inbound guests visiting India. It also fits independent consultants, home-based agents, and the front-desk team of a larger agency, because the prompts are written to be shared.

The Master Context block - paste this once

Before you use any prompt, paste this block into your AI assistant once per chat. It teaches the assistant who you are and, more importantly, that it must not invent facts. Then add the specific prompt you need.

> You are the AI planning assistant for [AGENCY NAME], an Indian travel agency based in [CITY] that specialises in [SPECIALITIES]. I am a travel consultant there. From now on, in every reply:
> 1. Write in clear, simple Indian English. Use Hinglish only when I ask.
> 2. Never invent hotel names, prices, drive times, visa fees, permit rules, opening hours or seasonal closures. If you do not have a confirmed figure, write 'confirm locally' instead.
> 3. When you produce an itinerary or a quote, end with a list titled 'Assumptions to verify'.
> 4. Do not state any tax rate as final. Add 'confirm with the chartered accountant'.
> 5. Keep client-facing messages warm, short and free of corporate jargon.
> Acknowledge this and wait for my first task.

The five habits that make every prompt work

1. Always give the brief. Tell the assistant the destination, dates or month, who is travelling (with ages), budget level, pace and anything to avoid. A vague prompt gets a generic tourist trail.

2. Paste your real inputs. Your rate sheet, your hotel tiers, your markup rule. Never let the model guess a price it has no way of knowing.

3. Always add the honesty line. 'Do not invent attractions, timings or drive times. If unsure, write confirm locally.' This single line is the difference between a usable draft and a liability.

4. Ask what it assumed. End every planning prompt with 'list anything you assumed that I should verify'. That list is where you catch the errors before a client does.

5. Verify before it reaches a client. Run Appendix E every time. The verification is the part of your job a client is actually paying you for, and no AI can do it for you.

The one number to remember this season
Roughly 48 out of every 100 domestic overnight trips in India are made for pilgrimage and religious reasons, and May and October are the peak months for leisure overnight trips. Winter (November to February) is peak for leisure and inbound travel. Plan your content and your campaigns around the real calendar in Appendix A, not around guesswork. Part 1

Enquiry and First Reply

The first hour decides the booking. These ten prompts turn a messy WhatsApp or Instagram message into a fast, warm, qualifying reply.

Prompt 1 - The 60-second first reply

Use when: a new enquiry lands on WhatsApp or Instagram and you want to reply before a competitor does.

> You are the senior travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], an Indian travel agency. A new enquiry just arrived. Write a warm, short WhatsApp reply (under 70 words) that (1) thanks them by name, (2) confirms you handle [DESTINATION / TYPE OF TRIP], (3) asks the three questions you need first - travel dates, number of travellers with ages, and rough budget per person, and (4) promises a call or a plan within 24 hours. Tone: friendly, professional, Indian English. Do not quote any price. Do not invent any offer.

Prompt 2 - Instagram DM to WhatsApp handoff

Use when: someone messages you on Instagram instead of WhatsApp.

> You are the social-media lead for [AGENCY NAME], an Indian travel agency. A prospect has sent this Instagram DM: [PASTE DM]. Write a friendly reply (under 60 words) that answers their core question briefly, then moves the conversation to WhatsApp for the detailed plan. Give them one clear reason to switch (faster sharing of itineraries and quotes). Include a natural line inviting them to save your number [NUMBER]. Keep it human, not salesy.

Prompt 3 - The 'kitna lagega?' budget-first reply

Use when: the very first message is just 'kitna lagega?' or 'price kya hai?' with no details.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A prospect has asked only for the price of a [DESTINATION] trip with no details. Write a polite WhatsApp reply (under 80 words) that explains you price by dates, number of people and hotel category, so you cannot give an honest number yet. Then ask the four details you need (dates or month, number of adults and children with ages, hotel category, and whether flights are included). Offer a rough starting range only if you have one: [YOUR RANGE]. Never invent a figure. Hinglish-friendly.

Prompt 4 - Hinglish reply for a local family enquiry

Use when: a domestic family enquiry comes in Hinglish and you want to sound like a real person, not a brochure.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a Hinglish (Hindi written in English letters) WhatsApp reply to a family enquiry for a [DESTINATION] trip. Keep it warm and simple, under 90 words. Confirm you can plan it, ask for dates, number of members with children's ages, and budget per person, and say you will send a day-wise plan. Use everyday Hinglish - no heavy Sanskritised Hindi, no corporate jargon. End with one easy question so they reply.

Prompt 5 - The pre-quote question set

Use when: you are about to quote and want to ask everything in one clean message instead of ten back-and-forth messages.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write one WhatsApp message that asks a prospect everything you need before quoting a [DESTINATION] trip, in a numbered list they can answer in one reply. Cover: exact or approximate dates, number of travellers (adults, children with ages, senior citizens), origin city, hotel category and room sharing, meal plan, must-do experiences, any mobility or medical needs, budget per person, and whether flights are included. Keep each question to one line. Warm, not interrogative.

Prompt 6 - Reply to 'just send me your best price'

Use when: a prospect is comparison-shopping and pushing for a number with no commitment.

> You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], an Indian travel agency. A prospect says 'just send me your best price, I am comparing agencies'. Write a confident, non-desperate WhatsApp reply (under 80 words) that explains your price depends on the plan you build, offers to send two options (value and comfort) if they share dates and numbers, and states plainly what makes you worth the difference: [YOUR TWO DIFFERENTIATORS]. Do not discount on the spot. Keep it respectful and friendly.

Prompt 7 - Peak-season auto-reply that still converts

Use when: it is November to February, enquiries are flooding in, and you cannot reply to everyone instantly.

> You are the manager at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a WhatsApp auto-reply for the peak winter season that (1) thanks the traveller, (2) sets a realistic response time (e.g. within 4 working hours), (3) captures the essentials with three quick questions, and (4) mentions that December and New Year dates and popular hotels sell out fast, so early confirmation helps. Under 70 words. No price. No false urgency - only the true one.

Prompt 8 - Redirecting a destination you do not sell

Use when: a lead wants a destination or service you do not handle, and you want to keep the relationship.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A prospect has asked for [DESTINATION YOU DO NOT SELL]. Write a short, honest WhatsApp reply (under 70 words) that thanks them, says clearly this is not your speciality, and suggests one of your genuine strengths instead: [YOUR SPECIALITIES]. If you can, offer a specific alternative that fits what they described. Do not pretend to sell something you do not. End by keeping the door open for their future trips.

Prompt 9 - Turn a messy chat into a CRM note

Use when: an enquiry has gone back and forth and you need a clean record before you forget the details.

> You are an assistant to a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. From this WhatsApp conversation, extract a clean lead record: [PASTE CHAT]. Output as labelled lines - Client name, Contact, Destination, Travel dates, Number of travellers, Budget, Hotel category, Special requests, Source (Instagram / WhatsApp / referral), Stage (new / quoted / negotiating / booked), Next action with a date. If a field is not stated, write 'not stated' - do not guess.

Prompt 10 - The first follow-up nudge

Use when: you replied to an enquiry and they went silent.

You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A prospect enquired about [DESTINATION] [X] days ago and has not replied. Write a short, warm WhatsApp follow-up (under 50 words) that does not guilt-trip them. Remind them you are holding [WHAT YOU ARE HOLDING, e.g. a plan or an option], ask one simple question (are the dates still the same, or should we look at another month?), and make it easy to say yes or no. No discount offer in the first follow-up.

Part 2

Qualification and Discovery

Before you build anything, you need the real brief. These prompts run the discovery conversation and capture it properly.

Prompt 11 - The WhatsApp-friendly pre-call questionnaire

Use when: you want to gather the full brief before a call so the call is about choices, not basics.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Design a 10-question pre-call questionnaire for a [DESTINATION] trip that a traveller can answer quickly on WhatsApp. Keep it to one line per question, group it into three short blocks (travellers, preferences, logistics), and end with one open question: 'anything else we should know?'. Make it feel helpful, not like a form. Add a one-line note that answering it means a sharper plan on the call.

Prompt 12 - The 20-minute discovery call agenda

Use when: you have a call booked with a new prospect.

> You are the senior consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a tight 20-minute discovery-call agenda for a [TYPE OF TRIP] enquiry. Allocate minutes to each block: warm-up, understand the travellers, understand the budget, understand the must-haves and deal-breakers, explain your process, and agree next steps. Under each block, list the exact questions to ask. End with the three things you must leave the call knowing.

Prompt 13 - The budget reality-check conversation

Use when: the traveller's budget and their expectations do not match, and you must say so without losing them.

> You are a senior consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A traveller wants [DESTINATION] at [THEIR BUDGET PER PERSON] for [NIGHTS] nights, but the realistic cost for what they described is around [REALISTIC COST]. Write a WhatsApp message that (1) does not dismiss their budget, (2) explains honestly what their budget can and cannot buy, (3) offers two ways forward - adjust the plan or adjust the budget - and (4) asks which they prefer. Warm, factual, under 110 words. No blame, no jargon.

Prompt 14 - Traveller profile from a voice note

Use when: a client sent a long voice note instead of typing, and you need the brief on paper.

> You are an assistant to a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. From this voice-note transcript, build a traveller profile: [PASTE TRANSCRIPT]. Output labelled lines - Group type (family / couple / friends / corporate), Travellers with ages, Origin city, Destination and dates, Budget, Hotel preference, Pace (relaxed / packed), Food preferences, Mobility or medical needs, Must-dos, Deal-breakers. Mark anything unclear as 'needs confirmation' rather than guessing.

Prompt 15 - Tailoring the plan to the group type

Use when: you know the destination but need to shape it to who is actually travelling.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. I have a [GROUP TYPE: family with young kids / couple on honeymoon / group of friends / senior citizens / corporate offsite] travelling to [DESTINATION] for [NIGHTS] nights in [MONTH]. List the five planning decisions that change most for this group type, and for each, state your recommendation and the reason in one line. Then list three things you would avoid for this group and why. Practical and India-specific.

Prompt 16 - Fixed dates or flexible? the timing questions

Use when: the trip works only if the dates line up, and you need to know how flexible they are.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a short WhatsApp message that finds out how flexible a traveller's dates are for [DESTINATION]. Ask whether the dates are fixed or movable, whether school or office holidays constrain them, whether they can travel in the shoulder weeks instead of peak, and whether a midweek start is possible. Explain in one line why it matters (better rates and availability). Under 70 words.

Prompt 17 - Diet, mobility and medical questions

Use when: you are planning for a family or a group and do not want a nasty surprise on the trip.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a sensitive, respectful WhatsApp message that asks about dietary preferences (veg, Jain, no beef, allergies), mobility needs (walking distance, stairs, wheelchair), medical needs (medication, altitude, senior citizens' comfort) and any accessibility requirements for a [DESTINATION] trip. Keep it caring, not clinical, under 80 words. Explain that knowing this lets you pick the right hotels, transport and activities.

Prompt 18 - The repeat-customer fast-track brief

Use when: a past client is booking again and you do not want to make them repeat everything.

> You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A repeat client is planning a new trip to [DESTINATION]. Write a short message (under 70 words) that thanks them for coming back, references their last trip to [LAST DESTINATION], and asks only the four things that change trip to trip: dates, who is travelling this time, budget, and what they want to do differently from last time. Warm and personal, not a fresh form.

Prompt 19 - Corporate and MICE enquiry intake

Use when: a company asks about an offsite, conference or incentive trip.

> You are the corporate desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a structured intake message for a corporate or MICE enquiry about [DESTINATION / EVENT TYPE]. Ask for: company and contact, purpose (conference / offsite / incentive / team outing), number of delegates, dates and duration, origin cities, budget per delegate, hotel category, meeting-room and AV needs, F and B requirements, and billing and GST details. Present it as a numbered list a coordinator can forward internally. Professional, concise.

Prompt 20 - The 24-hour recap after the call

Use when: you finished a discovery call and want to lock the brief in writing.

You are a travel consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. From these call notes, write a WhatsApp recap message to the client: [PASTE NOTES]. Summarise in their own words what they want, list the decisions made, list anything still open with a question, and state the next step and when they will hear from you. Under 130 words. End by asking them to correct anything you got wrong - this protects you both.

Part 3

Itinerary Drafting

The drafting layer. AI gives you a first pass in minutes; you add the judgement and the verified detail.

Prompt 21 - The master day-wise itinerary prompt

Use when: you have the brief and want a first full draft to edit.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night / [N+1] day itinerary for [DESTINATION] for [GROUP: size, ages, mobility]. Travel dates: [DATES]. Budget category: [2-star / 3-star / 4-star]. Pace: no more than one long drive (over 4 hours) every two days. Output format: day-wise headings, the area each day is based in, drive time between each stop, hotel category (not a named property), meal plan (CP / MAP / AP), and a separate inclusions and exclusions block at the end. Do not invent attractions, activities, timings or drive times. If you are unsure of a drive time or a seasonal closure, write 'confirm locally' instead of guessing. At the end, list every assumption you made that I should verify.

Prompt 22 - Domestic hill-station itinerary

Use when: a family or couple wants the hills for the winter or summer break.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night hill-station itinerary for [DESTINATION: Himachal / Uttarakhand / Nilgiris / Northeast] for [GROUP]. Travel month: [MONTH]. Build in: realistic road time between towns, a rest day, one easy day for seniors or children, altitude and cold-weather notes, and an indoor option for each day in case of rain or snow. State hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent hotel names, ticket prices or opening hours - use placeholders I can replace. Flag any pass or road that may close in [MONTH] as 'confirm locally'.

Prompt 23 - Rajasthan heritage circuit

Use when: a traveller wants forts, palaces and the desert, usually in winter.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night Rajasthan itinerary covering [CITIES: e.g. Jaipur, Jodhpur, Udaipur, Jaisalmer]. Travellers: [GROUP]. Month: [MONTH]. Include: a sensible city order that cuts backtracking, drive times, one desert or fort highlight, a cultural evening, and a buffer half-day. Note that desert nights are cold in December and January. Output day-wise with hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent monument timings or ticket prices - use 'confirm locally'. List assumptions at the end.

Prompt 24 - Kerala backwaters and hills

Use when: a relaxed trip with a houseboat and tea country.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night Kerala itinerary for [GROUP] covering Kochi, Munnar, Thekkady and an Alleppey houseboat (adjust as needed). Month: [MONTH]. Include realistic hill-road drive times, one night on a houseboat with a note on check-in and check-out times, a tea-estate day, and a backwater day. Note that Munnar nights are cool even in winter. Day-wise output with hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent cruise times, park timings or prices - use 'confirm locally' and list assumptions.

Prompt 25 - Golden Triangle for first-time inbound guests

Use when: you host overseas guests coming to India for the first time.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency handling inbound guests. Draft a [N] night Golden Triangle itinerary (Delhi, Agra, Jaipur) for [GROUP] arriving [DATE]. Include: arrival-day buffer, the best time of day to see the Taj Mahal, a note that December and January mornings in Delhi and Agra can be foggy so sunrise plans may need a second attempt, one craft or cooking experience, and drive times. Day-wise output with hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent monument timings, ticket prices or visa rules - use 'confirm locally'. List assumptions.

Prompt 26 - Kashmir family trip with elderly parents

Use when: a family is travelling with senior citizens and comfort matters more than coverage.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night Kashmir itinerary for a family of [N], including [N] grandparents aged [AGES]. Prioritise low-altitude comfort: minimise long drives, avoid consecutive high-altitude days, and flag any leg that needs a permit, ID check or a pony or palki option. Include a rest day and a shikara day. Day-wise output with hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent permit rules, fares or opening times - mark anything permit-related as 'verify with local operator before confirming'. List assumptions.

Prompt 27 - Honeymoon itinerary

Use when: a couple wants a romantic trip, often right after a wedding.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night honeymoon itinerary for [DESTINATION: Bali / Maldives / Andamans / Kerala / Europe] for a couple in their [AGE RANGE]. Month: [MONTH]. Balance beach or nature time, one adventure or sightseeing day, two special dinners, and plenty of downtime. Note visa and document needs as placeholders I will fill myself. Day-wise output with hotel category (and any adults-only or honeymoon-perk note) and meal plan. Do not invent hotel names, activity prices or visa fees - use placeholders and 'confirm locally'. List assumptions.

Prompt 28 - Gulf city break with a visa placeholder

Use when: a short international trip where visa and transfer detail matters.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night [DUBAI / ABU DHABI / other Gulf city] itinerary for [GROUP]. Include: arrival and departure transfer notes, a city tour day, a desert or waterpark day, a shopping and dining evening, and a free half-day. Leave a clearly marked placeholder line for visa type, processing time and documents, which I will fill from my own current source. Day-wise output with hotel category and meal plan. Do not invent visa fees, entry rules or attraction timings. List assumptions.

Prompt 29 - Group tour and fixed-departure itinerary

Use when: you are running a fixed-departure group where logistics must be rigid.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Draft a [N] night fixed-departure group tour itinerary to [DESTINATION] for [N] travellers, departure on [DATE]. Build it so the whole group moves together: fixed departure times, coach or train transfers, group meal slots, one free evening, and a note on the assembly point and reporting time each day. Include a day-wise table with time blocks. Do not invent hotel names, entrance fees or train timings - use placeholders. Add a short 'what to carry' line and list assumptions.

Prompt 30 - The slow or luxury version of an existing plan

Use when: the client found the plan too packed or wants a premium rework.

> You are an itinerary-drafting assistant for an Indian travel agency. Here is an existing [N] night [DESTINATION] itinerary: [PASTE ITINERARY]. Create a slower, more premium version for the same dates. Rules: cut at least one stop, add a rest half-day, upgrade hotel category by one level, replace one group activity with a private one, and keep the total nights the same. Show the changes as a short before-and-after list, then the revised day-wise plan. Do not invent hotel names or prices - use placeholders and list assumptions.

Part 4

Quotations, Pricing and Markup

The quotation is where a deal is won or lost. These prompts build a clean, honest, margin-safe quote.

Prompt 31 - The quotation document structure

Use when: you are building your standard quote format once and reusing it all season.

> You are a senior consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Design the section structure for a client-ready travel quotation. Include: cover line with reference number and validity date, trip summary, day-wise itinerary, hotel details (category, room type, meal plan, nights), inclusions, exclusions, optional add-ons, price per person and total, payment schedule, cancellation policy, and a short terms note. For each section, give one line on what it must contain. Make it clear enough that a client can approve it without a call.

Prompt 32 - Apply your markup to net rates

Use when: you have net supplier rates and need to present a selling price with your margin intact.

> You are the pricing desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Here are my net costs for a [DESTINATION] trip: [PASTE NET COSTS BY HEAD]. My markup rule is [X] percent on land arrangements and [Y] on flights, or a fixed service fee of [AMOUNT] per booking. Produce a clean pricing sheet: net cost, markup, selling price and per-person price for each head, then the grand total. Show the arithmetic. Do not invent any cost I have not given. Flag any head where the markup looks too thin to cover risk.

Prompt 33 - The inclusions and exclusions block

Use when: you want to prevent the disputes that come from a vague quote.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write the inclusions and exclusions block for a [DESTINATION] [N] night trip. Inclusions: list clearly what the price covers (accommodation with meal plan, transfers, sightseeing with entry where stated, taxes as applicable). Exclusions: list the standard ones (airfare unless stated, visa fees, travel insurance, personal expenses, meals not mentioned, optional activities, anything not in inclusions). Use plain, unambiguous language. Add one line stating that any service not listed under inclusions is not part of the price.

Prompt 34 - Cost breakup by head

Use when: a client wants to see where the money goes.

> You are the pricing desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a client-facing cost breakup for a [DESTINATION] trip for [N] travellers: accommodation, transport and transfers, sightseeing and entry fees, meals, activities, taxes and service fee. Present as a table with amount and share of total. Add a one-line note that prices are based on [DATE] and are subject to availability at the time of confirmation. Do not invent figures - use the numbers I give: [PASTE FIGURES].

Prompt 35 - Three-tier quote

Use when: you want to give a client a real choice instead of one take-it-or-leave-it price.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a three-tier quote for a [DESTINATION] [N] night trip for [GROUP]: Value, Comfort and Premium. For each tier, give the hotel category, room type, meal plan, transport type, one signature experience, and the per-person price. Make the differences clear and honest - no fake downgrades in the value tier. Add a one-line note on what each tier is best for. Use my numbers: [PASTE NUMBERS]. List assumptions.

Prompt 36 - Hotel tier comparison table

Use when: the client cannot decide between hotel categories.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Create a comparison table of three hotel options for [DESTINATION] for the client's dates: Option A, B and C. Columns: area, category, room type, meal plan, distance to the main attraction, what the client gains by upgrading, and price per night. Do not name real hotels unless I give them - use 'Option A' etc. and placeholders. End with a one-line recommendation for this client's group type: [GROUP TYPE].

Prompt 37 - Handling a discount request without cutting margin

Use when: the client asks for a discount and you do not want to just slash the price.

> You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. A client wants [X] percent off a [DESTINATION] quote. Write a WhatsApp reply that protects your margin: (1) thank them, (2) hold the price but explain its value in one line, (3) offer one non-margin-destroying alternative - a different travel date, a lower hotel category, a shorter trip, or a small value-add like [ADD-ON], and (4) ask which they prefer. Under 100 words. Never discount without removing or changing something in return.

Prompt 38 - Per-person vs total presentation

Use when: you want to present the price in the way that reads best for this client.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. I have a quote of [TOTAL] for [N] travellers. Write two versions of the pricing line for the quote - one showing total and one showing per person (and per couple if relevant) - and recommend which to lead with for a [GROUP TYPE] client. Explain the one-line reasoning. Keep both versions clean and unambiguous, with a note on what is included. Do not change the underlying numbers.

Prompt 39 - The optional add-ons menu

Use when: you want to lift the average booking value without pressure-selling.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build an optional add-ons menu for a [DESTINATION] trip: 6 to 8 extras a client can choose from (for example a private transfer upgrade, an extra experience, a meal upgrade, travel insurance assistance, a room upgrade, a late checkout). For each, give a one-line description and a price placeholder. Present it as a simple tick-list the client can reply to. No pressure language - frame each as a genuine choice.

Prompt 40 - Payment schedule and milestones

Use when: you want cash flow to work while staying fair to the client.

You are the finance desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a payment schedule for a [DESTINATION] booking of [TOTAL]. Set milestones that protect the agency and stay reasonable for the client - for example a booking advance to confirm, a second instalment before the final supplier deadlines, and the balance before travel. For each milestone give the percentage or amount, the due date or trigger, and one line on why it falls there. Add a short note on how late payment is handled. Do not invent tax figures.

Part 5

Client Communication and Follow-up

The quiet work that fills the pipeline and prevents complaints. Ten messages you will send again and again.

Prompt 41 - The quote-delivery message

Use when: you are sending the finished quotation and want it opened and understood.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write the WhatsApp message that delivers a finished [DESTINATION] quotation. Summarise the trip in two lines, point out the two things the client cares about most (based on their brief: [BRIEF]), state the quote validity date, and give one clear next step. Under 90 words. Attach-the-PDF tone. Do not repeat the whole quote in the message - the message sells the click.

Prompt 42 - The follow-up sequence

Use when: a quote has gone out and you need to follow up without nagging.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a four-message follow-up sequence for a [DESTINATION] quote sent on [DATE]: at 24 hours, 72 hours, day 7 and day 14. Each message must be short (under 45 words), add one new piece of value (a tip, a date reminder, an alternative option, a gentle deadline), and end with an easy question. No guilt, no repeated 'just checking in'. Escalate tone slightly across the sequence.

Prompt 43 - The 'we are thinking about it' reply

Use when: the client is interested but not ready to commit.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A client says they are 'thinking about it' on a [DESTINATION] quote. Write a warm WhatsApp reply (under 80 words) that respects their time, asks one honest question to find the real hesitation (price, dates, family approval, another agency), and offers one thing that helps - holding the quote, offering a call, or sending one more option. Do not create fake urgency. Do not discount.

Prompt 44 - Flight delay or change notification

Use when: a flight changes and the client must hear it from you first, calmly.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A client's flight for their [DESTINATION] trip has been [DELAYED / RESCHEDULED / CANCELLED] on [DATE]. Write a calm WhatsApp message that (1) states the change plainly, (2) says what you are already doing about it, (3) gives the two options you can offer, and (4) tells them when you will confirm the fix. Under 100 words. No panic, no blame on the airline. Reassure without over-promising.

Prompt 45 - Hotel overbooking or room-change message

Use when: a hotel cannot honour the booking and you must keep the client's trust.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A hotel on a client's [DESTINATION] trip has had an overbooking or room issue for [DATES]. Write a WhatsApp message that (1) tells them honestly, (2) states the fix you have secured (an equivalent or better option), (3) explains what you are doing to make it right, and (4) apologises once, sincerely, without grovelling. Under 100 words. The client must feel you are handling it, not just relaying it.

Prompt 46 - Weather or road disruption advisory

Use when: a storm, fog, landslide or snow may affect the trip.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. There is a weather or road disruption that may affect a client's [DESTINATION] trip: [DESCRIBE THE ISSUE]. Write a proactive WhatsApp advisory that (1) tells them what is happening in plain words, (2) explains how their specific plan is affected or protected, (3) gives the two contingency options, and (4) tells them you are monitoring it and when you will update them. Under 110 words. Calm and factual.

Prompt 47 - Pre-departure confirmation message

Use when: the trip is a few days away and you want everything confirmed in writing.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a pre-departure confirmation message for a [DESTINATION] trip starting [DATE]. Confirm in a short list: dates, hotel and room type, meal plan, transfers, the first-day plan, and your emergency contact. Then give three reminders (documents, packing, check-in). Under 140 words. End with one warm line. This message is the client's one-place reference - keep it clean.

Prompt 48 - Mid-trip check-in message

Use when: the client is on the trip and you want to catch problems early.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A client is mid-trip in [DESTINATION]. Write a short WhatsApp check-in (under 50 words) that asks how the trip is going, whether the hotel and transfers have been as promised, and reminds them you are reachable on [NUMBER] if anything is off. Warm and light - not a survey. This is the message that earns the review and the repeat booking.

Prompt 49 - The mid-trip change request reply

Use when: the client wants to change the plan while they are travelling.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A client mid-trip in [DESTINATION] wants to change [WHAT THEY WANT TO CHANGE]. Write a reply that (1) says yes where you can, (2) explains clearly any cost or availability impact, (3) confirms the new arrangement once they approve, and (4) keeps the tone helpful under pressure. Under 100 words. Never promise a change you have not checked with the supplier.

Prompt 50 - Post-trip thank-you and review ask

Use when: the client is back and this is the moment for a review and a referral.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. A client has just returned from [DESTINATION]. Write a WhatsApp message that (1) welcomes them home and thanks them, (2) asks one specific question about their favourite part, (3) asks for a short review on [GOOGLE / platform] with a direct link placeholder, and (4) mentions you would love to plan their next trip. Under 80 words. Warm, never pushy.

Part 6

Visa, Documents and Pre-Trip

The part that causes the worst complaints if it slips. These prompts prepare the client - and keep you honest about what AI cannot know.

Prompt 51 - Visa requirement brief

Use when: you are checking visa needs for a client and must not guess.

> You are a travel-documents assistant for an Indian travel agency. For an Indian passport holder travelling to [DESTINATION] for [PURPOSE] for [NIGHTS], list the visa or entry requirement in a short brief: visa type, where to apply, typical processing time, and the documents usually needed. CRITICAL RULE: do not state any visa fee, exact processing time or rule as fact. For every line, add 'verify on the official website of [EMBASSY / AUTHORITY] before confirming'. End with a line telling me to reconfirm with the embassy or consulate closest to the client.

Prompt 52 - Document checklist by trip type

Use when: you want one checklist you can reuse for domestic, Gulf and international trips.

> You are a travel-documents assistant for an Indian travel agency. Build a document checklist for a [DOMESTIC / INTERNATIONAL / PILGRIMAGE] trip. Include: identity and travel documents, booking and ticket copies, insurance, any permits or passes, and digital plus printed copies of everything. Present as a tick-list the client can screenshot. Add a note that passport validity rules and permit requirements differ by destination and must be confirmed officially.

Prompt 53 - Passport validity and name-match check

Use when: a small mismatch can stop a traveller at the airport.

> You are a travel-documents assistant for an Indian travel agency. Write a short WhatsApp message that asks a client to check three things before you book: (1) passport validity - most destinations want at least six months beyond travel, confirm the exact rule for [DESTINATION]; (2) that the name on the ticket exactly matches the passport, including spelling and surname order; and (3) that any old or damaged passport is renewed in time. Ask them to send a photo of the passport bio page. Under 90 words. Friendly, not alarming.

Prompt 54 - Packing list by season and destination

Use when: you want to send a packing list that is actually right for the trip.

> You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Create a packing list for a [N] night trip to [DESTINATION] in [MONTH]. Group it by: clothing (with a note on layers for cold mornings and desert nights, or light cottons for the coast), footwear, documents, medicines and health items, electronics and chargers, and destination-specific extras. Add three lines on what NOT to overpack. Keep it practical and Indian-traveller friendly.

Prompt 55 - Forex and card briefing in plain words

Use when: a client is paying abroad and you want them to avoid surprises.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a plain-English briefing for a client travelling to [DESTINATION] on money and cards: how to carry forex (card vs cash), the difference between exchange rate and markup, why an international card or forex card usually beats airport cash, and a note that some overseas spends attract tax collected at source under the LRS rules. Do not state exact tax rates or fees as fact - mark those 'confirm with your bank'. Under 140 words.

Prompt 56 - Travel insurance explainer

Use when: you want the client to actually read what their insurance covers.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a short explainer for a client travelling to [DESTINATION] on what to check in travel insurance: medical cover and hospitalisation, emergency evacuation, trip cancellation and delay, baggage loss, and whether adventure activities are included. Tell them the three exclusions people miss most. Do not name a specific insurer or quote a premium. Under 130 words. End by telling them to read the policy document, not just the summary.

Prompt 57 - Airport and baggage briefing

Use when: the client is flying and needs the rules in one message.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an airport and baggage briefing for a client flying to [DESTINATION] on [AIRLINE]. Cover: check-in and reporting time, cabin and check-in baggage allowances, liquids and battery rules, and what to keep in hand luggage. Do not state exact allowances as fact - use placeholders and add a line to confirm on the airline's website or ticket. Under 120 words. Clean and scannable.

Prompt 58 - Connectivity and eSIM briefing

Use when: the client wants to stay online without a shock bill.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a short briefing for a client travelling to [DESTINATION] on staying connected: options (international roaming pack, local SIM, travel eSIM), how to compare them, and the one mistake that causes a huge bill (data roaming left on). Do not quote specific prices - mark them 'check current rates'. Under 110 words. Tell them to set it up before they fly.

Prompt 59 - The 7-day pre-departure countdown

Use when: the last week before travel, when small things get missed.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a 7-day pre-departure countdown for a client travelling to [DESTINATION] on [DATE]. One short action or check per day for the final week: documents and copies, currency and cards, packing, medicine, connectivity, confirming transfers, and a final weather check. Keep each line under 12 words so it reads as a checklist. End with your contact line.

Prompt 60 - Emergency contact and contingency card

Use when: the client should have one card with everything they need if something goes wrong.

You are a consultant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build an emergency and contingency card for a client's [DESTINATION] trip. Include: your 24-hour contact, the hotel name and number placeholder, local emergency numbers for [DESTINATION], the insurance helpline placeholder, and a short 'if this goes wrong, do this' list for the three most likely problems (missed transfer, lost document, medical issue). Present it as a card the client can save on their phone. Under 150 words.

Part 7

Supplier and Partner Management

Your margin and your reputation live with your suppliers. These prompts make that work faster and firmer.

Prompt 61 - Hotel rate request email

Use when: you are asking a hotel for rates for specific dates.

> You are the contracting desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a professional email to a hotel requesting rates for [DATES] for [N] rooms of [ROOM TYPE], [MEAL PLAN], for [N] nights. Include: our agency profile in one line, the exact requirement, the rate we need (net, with tax treatment stated), whether the rate is commissionable, allotment and release terms, and a clear response deadline. Polite and specific. End with the two questions that matter: best net rate and release date.

Prompt 62 - Group rate negotiation email

Use when: you are negotiating for a group and want leverage without arrogance.

> You are the contracting desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an email negotiating a group rate for [N] rooms / [N] guests at [HOTEL TYPE] in [DESTINATION] for [DATES]. State the volume, mention that this is a repeat or seasonal requirement if true, ask for a group net rate with inclusions, and ask for one value-add (a free room, a welcome drink, an upgrade for the group leader). Set a clear deadline. Firm but courteous - this is a partnership, not a demand.

Prompt 63 - Vendor comparison matrix

Use when: you have three quotes and need to compare them properly.

> You are the contracting desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a comparison matrix from these supplier quotes: [PASTE QUOTES]. Columns: supplier, net rate, inclusions, tax treatment, payment terms, cancellation terms, allotment and release, response speed, and reliability note. Rows: one per supplier. End with a one-line recommendation and the single risk to watch. Do not invent any figure - use only what is in the quotes.

Prompt 64 - DMC and partner due-diligence questions

Use when: you are about to work with a new destination partner.

> You are the partnerships lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a due-diligence question list for a new DMC or ground partner in [DESTINATION]. Cover: registration and licences, years in operation, references from Indian agents, how they handle emergencies, their liability and insurance, payment and credit terms, and how they resolve disputes. Present as a numbered list you can email. End with the three questions whose answers would make you walk away.

Prompt 65 - Supplier contract summary in plain language

Use when: you have a long supplier agreement and need the important parts fast.

> You are the contracts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Summarise this supplier agreement in plain language: [PASTE CONTRACT]. Extract: what is being supplied, the price and tax treatment, payment terms, cancellation and amendment terms, liability and force majeure, and any unusual or risky clause. Flag anything you are unsure about as 'get legal review'. Do not give legal advice - present it as a summary for a human to check.

Prompt 66 - Chasing a pending confirmation

Use when: a supplier has gone quiet on a booking you need to confirm.

> You are the operations desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a follow-up email to a supplier about a pending confirmation for [BOOKING] for [DATES]. Reference the original request and date, state clearly what you still need (the confirmation and the final net rate), give a firm deadline because the client is waiting, and offer to call if that is faster. Under 120 words. Polite but it must move.

Prompt 67 - Rate-sheet update request

Use when: you want fresh rates before the season instead of finding out mid-booking.

> You are the contracting desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an email to your hotel and DMC partners asking for their updated [SEASON] rate sheets. Ask for: net rates by room or service category, blackout and peak dates, child policy, meal-plan supplements, tax treatment, and release terms. Give a response deadline that fits your selling season. Mention that you will only quote current rates, so timely updates help them win your bookings.

Prompt 68 - Escalation to a supplier

Use when: a supplier failed and you need to escalate without burning the relationship.

> You are the operations head at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an escalation email to a supplier about [THE FAILURE] on [BOOKING] for [DATES]. State the facts without emotion, explain the impact on the client, state what you need them to do and by when, and note what you will do if it is not resolved. Offer one line that leaves the relationship intact. Firm, factual, no threats you cannot keep. Under 150 words.

Prompt 69 - Allotment and release-deadline tracker note

Use when: you are holding rooms and need to track the deadlines that cost money if missed.

> You are the operations desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a tracker note for held bookings. Columns: client, destination, hotel or supplier, hold type, number of rooms or seats, release deadline, cancellation cost after deadline, deposit paid, and action owner. Fill it from this list: [PASTE HOLDINGS]. Then write a one-line rule at the top reminding the team to review the tracker every morning in peak season. Do not invent any deadline - use 'not stated' where missing.

Prompt 70 - New-partner onboarding checklist

Use when: you have just started working with a new supplier and want a clean start.

> You are the partnerships lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a new-supplier onboarding checklist for [SUPPLIER] in [DESTINATION]. Include: signed rate agreement, contact and escalation list, payment and credit terms, allotment and release rules, emergency procedure, invoice and tax format, and a test booking before you sell them to clients. Present as a tick-list. End with the one item you will not go live without.

Part 8

Marketing and Social

Fill the top of the funnel. These prompts turn your destination knowledge into posts, reels and broadcasts that start conversations.

Prompt 71 - Instagram content pillars for a travel agency

Use when: you want a content plan that is not just pretty photos.

> You are the marketing lead for [AGENCY NAME], an Indian travel agency specialising in [SPECIALITIES]. Create 5 content pillars that build trust and enquiries - for example destination know-how, client stories, practical tips, behind-the-scenes planning, and seasonal offers. For each pillar, give its purpose, 3 post ideas, and the type of post (reel, carousel, story, static). Make it India-specific and seasonal for [MONTH]. No generic advice.

Prompt 72 - 30-day seasonal content calendar

Use when: you want a month of posts planned, not improvised.

> You are the marketing lead for [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a 30-day Instagram content calendar for [MONTH], which is [PEAK / SHOULDER / OFF] season for [DESTINATIONS]. For each day give: the pillar, the post idea in one line, the format, and a one-line caption hook. Mix in the real dates that matter this month: [LIST RELEVANT FESTIVALS OR EVENTS]. End with the three posts you would boost first and why. Practical, not theoretical.

Prompt 73 - Reel or Short script from a destination

Use when: you want a short video script that earns saves and shares.

> You are a content creator for [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a 30-second Instagram Reel script about [DESTINATION] for travellers from [ORIGIN CITY]. Include: a hook in the first 2 seconds, a 5-beat shot list, the voiceover lines, and a caption with one question to drive comments. Tone: helpful and specific, not a brochure. Add a line telling viewers to DM for a plan. No invented facts about the place - use what I give you: [FACTS].

Prompt 74 - Caption bank with question hooks

Use when: you have photos and need captions that get replies.

> You are the social-media lead for [AGENCY NAME], India. Write 10 Instagram captions for posts about [DESTINATION]. Each caption must be under 40 words, sound human, include one specific detail, and end with a question that invites a reply (a comment or a DM). Give a mix of tones - warm, useful, playful. Do not use clichés like 'paradise on earth'. Add a suggested hashtag set of 12 relevant tags at the end.

Prompt 75 - WhatsApp broadcast that starts a conversation

Use when: you want to message your list without it feeling like spam.

> You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a WhatsApp marketing broadcast for a [DESTINATION] package for [MONTH]. Rule: the broadcast must be a hook, not a hard sell - lead with one destination, one strong idea, and one simple reply word or question that opens a conversation. Under 45 words. Add a one-line note that each broadcast message is a charged marketing template and the traveller's reply opens a free service window, so plan the reply you will send next.

Prompt 76 - Package landing-page copy

Use when: you are putting a package page on your website or a link-in-bio.

> You are the copywriter for [AGENCY NAME], India. Write landing-page copy for a [N] night [DESTINATION] package. Include: a headline, a subheadline, a 3-line intro, a 'what is included' list, a 'who it is perfect for' line, a short day-wise summary, and a call to action. Write for Indian travellers, warm and clear. Use placeholders for price and dates. Do not invent facts about the destination - use only what I give: [DETAILS].

Prompt 77 - Google Business Profile post

Use when: you want local visibility for people searching travel agencies near you.

> You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a Google Business Profile post promoting your [DESTINATION] packages for [MONTH]. Keep it under 100 words, lead with the benefit, mention your city and speciality, include a call to action to call or WhatsApp, and add a line about what makes you different: [DIFFERENTIATORS]. No keyword stuffing. End with 5 relevant search terms a local client might use.

Prompt 78 - Festival and season promotion email

Use when: you want an email campaign for a festival or the season opening.

> You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a festival or season promotion email for [OCCASION / SEASON] featuring [DESTINATION]. Include: a subject line and a preview line, a warm opening tied to the occasion, the offer or idea, two or three package highlights, and one clear call to action. Under 200 words. Avoid fake scarcity - use real reasons to book now (dates, availability). End with your contact block placeholder.

Prompt 79 - Turn a review into a post

Use when: a happy client wrote something and you want to use it well.

> You are the social-media lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Turn this client review into three pieces of content: [PASTE REVIEW]. (1) a short Instagram caption, (2) a one-line testimonial graphic text under 15 words, and (3) a WhatsApp status line. Keep the client anonymous unless the review names them with permission. Do not exaggerate or add claims the review does not make. Add one line on the trip to give context.

Prompt 80 - The 'why book with us, not online' post

Use when: you want to answer the question every client asks in their head.

You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a confident, non-defensive Instagram post (under 180 words) on why booking with a good travel agency beats assembling a trip yourself online. Cover the three real advantages - verified and current information, someone accountable when things go wrong, and a plan built around you - and be honest about the one case where going it alone is fine. End with a soft call to action. No bashing of OTAs.

Part 9

Reviews, Referrals and Repeat Business

The cheapest bookings you will ever get. These prompts build a system that brings clients back and brings their friends.

Prompt 81 - The review request sequence

Use when: you want more reviews without begging for them.

> You are the client-experience lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a three-message review-request sequence after a client returns from [DESTINATION]: at day 1, day 4 and day 10. Each under 50 words. The first asks how the trip went, the second asks for a review with a link placeholder, the third offers something in return if you have it (a small discount on the next trip). Warm and easy to say yes to. Never guilt-trip.

Prompt 82 - Turning a review into a case study

Use when: you want a client story you can reuse in proposals and posts.

> You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Turn this client trip into a short case study: [PASTE DETAILS AND REVIEW]. Structure: the brief, the challenge or constraint, what we planned, the result, and a one-line client quote. Keep it under 180 words, use the client's first name only with permission, and do not invent any detail not in the source. End with the destination and trip length so it can be reused.

Prompt 83 - Referral programme message

Use when: you want past clients to send you their friends.

> You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Design a simple referral programme and write the message to launch it. Programme: a past client who refers someone who books gets [REWARD], and the new client gets [NEW-CLIENT BENEFIT]. Write a warm WhatsApp message (under 80 words) explaining it in one or two lines, making it easy to forward, and thanking them for their trust. Keep the reward realistic and margin-safe.

Prompt 84 - Repeat-customer win-back

Use when: a past client has not travelled with you in a while.

> You are the client-experience lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a warm WhatsApp message to a past client who travelled to [LAST DESTINATION] about [TIME] ago and has not booked since. Reference their last trip specifically, mention one new option that fits what they liked, and ask one easy question (any travel planned this year?). Under 70 words. No pressure, no discount-first. The goal is to reopen the conversation.

Prompt 85 - Early-bird campaign for next season

Use when: you want bookings locked before the season rush.

You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an early-bird campaign for [NEXT SEASON / MONTH] trips to [DESTINATION]. Message: book early for [REAL REASON - better rates, availability, choice of dates], with an early-bird benefit of [BENEFIT]. Write a WhatsApp message and a short email version. Both under 120 words. Be honest about the deadline and what happens after it. End with a clear next step.

Prompt 86 - Alumni group-tour re-invite

Use when: you ran a group tour and want the same travellers back.

You are the group-tours lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a re-invitation message to travellers who joined your [LAST DESTINATION] group tour in [MONTH]. Reference the shared experience, announce the next fixed-departure tour to [NEW DESTINATION] on [DATES], give the highlights in three lines, and offer a returning-traveller benefit. Under 110 words. Warm and personal - these people already trust you.

Prompt 87 - New destination announcement

Use when: you have added a destination or service and want your list to know.

You are the marketing lead at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an announcement for a new destination or service: [WHAT IS NEW]. Include: what it is, why you added it, who it suits, and one clear call to action. Write a WhatsApp version (under 60 words) and an Instagram caption version (under 80 words with a question). Keep the excitement real - no over-claiming. Add one line on what makes your version of it different.

Prompt 88 - Handling a negative review

Use when: a public complaint needs a calm, professional answer.

You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. A client has left this negative review: [PASTE REVIEW]. Write a public reply that (1) thanks them for the feedback, (2) acknowledges the specific issue without excuses or blame, (3) states what you have changed or will change, and (4) invites them to talk privately. Under 110 words. Calm, accountable, no arguing in public. Then write a short private message to try to resolve it.

Prompt 89 - Corporate client re-engagement

Use when: a company booked with you before and has gone quiet.

You are the corporate desk at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a re-engagement email to a corporate client who last booked [EVENT / TRIP] in [MONTH]. Reference their last programme, mention one relevant new option or a fresh destination for offsites, and offer to send a proposal for their next quarter. Under 130 words. Professional, low-pressure, with one clear next step and a proposed call time.

Prompt 90 - The 90-day off-season plan

Use when: the season is over and you want to use the quiet months well.

You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a 90-day off-season plan for [AGENCY]. Cover: refreshing supplier rate sheets, rebuilding your quote and itinerary templates, fixing your website and Google profile, collecting and posting reviews, planning the next season's campaigns, training on AI tools, and tightening your accounting. Give one clear task per week for 12 weeks, each with a measurable outcome. End with the three tasks that will earn the most next season.

Part 10

Business Ops: GST, TCS, Cash Flow and Off-Season

The paperwork and the money. These prompts help you explain the rules to clients and run the business. Always confirm tax positions with your CA.

Prompt 91 - Draft a GST-correct tour-operator invoice note

Use when: you are issuing a tour-operator invoice and want the tax line clear.

> You are the accounts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India, a registered tour operator. Draft the tax note for an invoice for a [DESTINATION] tour of [TOTAL] where the amount includes both accommodation and transportation. Explain, in one short paragraph, that tour-operator services are billed at 5 percent GST without input tax credit, or at 18 percent with input tax credit, and that we have chosen the [5 percent / 18 percent] option. Do not state the law as final - add a line: 'Tax treatment to be confirmed with our chartered accountant.' Use the SAC placeholder [99855].

Prompt 92 - Pure agent vs package billing explainer

Use when: a client asks why the GST looks different on two of your quotes.

> You are the accounts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a plain-English explanation for a client of the difference between billing as a 'pure agent' (where GST is charged only on the service fee or commission) and billing as a package (where GST applies to the full value of the tour). Explain which one applies to their booking and why, in under 120 words. Do not give tax advice - end with 'please confirm with your accountant if you need it for your own books'.

Prompt 93 - Explaining TCS on an overseas tour package

Use when: a client is buying an international package and sees an extra tax line.

> You are the accounts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a plain-English note for a client buying an overseas tour package explaining tax collected at source (TCS). Explain that, from 1 April 2026, an overseas tour programme package attracts TCS at a flat 2 percent on each remittance with no minimum threshold, that TCS is not a cost but a tax you can claim credit for when filing your income tax return, and that other LRS remittances have their own rates. Add: 'Confirm the exact treatment with your chartered accountant.' Under 140 words.

Prompt 94 - Place-of-supply note for an interstate client

Use when: a client in another state wants to know which GST applies.

> You are the accounts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a short internal note explaining the place of supply for a tour-operator service booked by a client in [CLIENT STATE] for a tour in [DESTINATION STATE]. State the general rule (place of supply for tour-operator services is where the services are actually performed) and whether that makes it a CGST-plus-SGST or an IGST supply in this case. Flag that inbound tours and composite tours have special rules. End with 'confirm the exact position with our chartered accountant'.

Prompt 95 - Cash-flow forecast from a booking pipeline

Use when: you want to see the money coming in before it lands.

> You are the finance assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a simple 90-day cash-flow forecast from my booking pipeline: [PASTE BOOKINGS WITH AMOUNT AND PAYMENT DATES]. Show, month by month, expected receipts, expected supplier payments, and net position. List any week where the net is negative and needs attention. Add a one-line note that this is a planning aid, not accounting. Do not invent any figure - use only what I give you.

Prompt 96 - Advance and payment reminder message

Use when: a payment is due and you want it paid without damaging the relationship.

> You are the accounts assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Write a polite WhatsApp payment reminder for an outstanding [AMOUNT] due on [DATE] for a [DESTINATION] booking. Reference the booking and the agreed schedule, state the amount and due date, explain in one line why the deadline matters (supplier deadlines), and give an easy way to pay. Under 70 words. Firm but friendly. Add a one-line softer version for a client who is a day or two late.

Prompt 97 - Refund and cancellation policy draft

Use when: you need a clear policy you can put in every quote.

> You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Draft a plain-English cancellation and refund policy for a [DESTINATION] trip. Cover: what happens if the client cancels at different stages before travel, how much is refundable at each stage, what is non-refundable once supplier payments are made, how refunds are processed and how long they take, and what happens if we or a supplier cancel. Make it fair and specific, not one-sided. Add a line that supplier and airline rules may override parts of it. End with 'not legal advice'.

Prompt 98 - Simple monthly P and L from your bookings

Use when: you want to know whether the month actually made money.

> You are the finance assistant at [AGENCY NAME], India. Build a simple monthly profit and loss from these figures: [PASTE REVENUE AND COSTS]. Show revenue, direct supplier costs, gross margin, operating expenses, and net profit, with margins as percentages. Then write three observations in plain language - what is working, what is leaking, and one action for next month. Add a one-line note that this is a management view, not filed accounts. Do not invent any figure.

Prompt 99 - Off-season cost-control checklist

Use when: the quiet months and you want to trim without cutting what earns.

> You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Write an off-season cost-control checklist for a small travel agency. Cover: subscriptions and tools you can pause or downgrade, marketing spend that can wait, supplier credit terms to renegotiate, fixed costs to review, and the things you must NOT cut because they earn money (for example your response speed or your reviews). Present as a tick-list with a one-line reason for each. End with the two cuts that save the most for the least pain.

Prompt 100 - The season debrief

Use when: the season is over and you want next year to be better.

You are the owner of [AGENCY NAME], India. Run a season debrief using these results: [PASTE BOOKINGS, DESTINATIONS, MARGINS, COMPLAINTS]. Produce: what sold best, which destinations made the most margin, where you lost time or money, the three recurring client complaints, and the three changes to make before next season. Then write a one-page action list with an owner and a deadline for each change. Be blunt where the data is blunt. Do not invent any figure.

The 2026-27 India Travel Calendar

This is the real calendar to plan your season around, checked in October 2026 against official tourism and festival sources. Use it to time your campaigns, warn clients about sold-out dates, and know which weeks carry a price premium.

The dates that matter, November 2026 to March 2027

Date	Event	Why it matters to you
8 Nov 2026	Diwali	India's biggest festival. Roads, trains and flights are at their most crowded either side of it. Beautiful, but not a quiet travel week.
17-24 Nov 2026	Pushkar Camel Fair (peaks on Kartik Purnima, 24 Nov)	Pushkar rooms sell out well ahead; visitors spill over to Ajmer. Book accommodation months early.
24 Nov 2026	Dev Deepawali, Varanasi; Guru Nanak Jayanti, Amritsar	The most spectacular night of the year on the Varanasi ghats. A strong inbound and domestic draw.
1-10 Dec 2026	Hornbill Festival, Kisama (near Kohima, Nagaland)	A signature Northeast event. Flights and Kohima stays fill fast.
24 Dec 2026 - 2 Jan 2027	Christmas, New Year and the winter school break	Peak of the peak. Goa, Kerala and the hills price at their annual highest and sell out.
14-17 Jan 2027	Makar Sankranti and Pongal; Uttarayan kite festival	Harvest festivals across Gujarat and Tamil Nadu. Fares and rooms rise around these dates.
14-18 Jan 2027	Jaipur Literature Festival	A busy Jaipur week; plan hotel and transfers early.
26 Jan 2027	Republic Day	Short trips fill up; Delhi sightseeing and flights are reshaped for a week.
18-20 Feb 2027	Jaisalmer Desert Festival	A winter highlight in Rajasthan; desert camps book out.
6 Mar 2027	Maha Shivratri	Extraordinary in Varanasi and Mandi (Himachal).
22 Mar 2027	Holi	The festival most inbound guests build a trip around. Holika Dahan the evening before.

Season-long: the Rann Utsav tent city in the Rann of Kutch, Gujarat, runs through the winter (roughly November to February). Its tented accommodation is a fixed, non-expandable inventory for the whole season, so treat a Rann Utsav booking as a separate, high-priority item.

> Pilgrimage travel - a season inside the season
> The Sabarimala Mandala-Makaravilakku season for 2026-27 runs from 16 November 2026 (Mandala Pooja on 27 December 2026) to Makaravilakku on 14 January 2027, closing on 20 January 2027. Virtual-Q booking is mandatory and peak-week quotas fill fast. Always confirm the final schedule with the Travancore Devaswom Board before you promise a date.

The three windows to sell

Window	Feel	What to sell
Late Nov - mid Feb	The best of the Indian year: cool, dry, clear. Peak pricing.	Rajasthan, Kerala, Goa, Golden Triangle, hills, inbound guests.
Mid Feb - mid Mar	Equally good, warming up. Holi falls in this window.	Heritage, wildlife, Holi trips, pre-summer hill breaks.
Apr onwards	The plains get very hot.	Shift to the Himalaya, the coast, or wait for the monsoon.

Demand context for your pitch: India recorded about 4,548 million domestic tourist visits in 2025, and Indian national departures reached about 32.83 million in 2025, up around 6.3 percent on 2024. The top outbound destinations for Indians are led by the UAE, Saudi Arabia, the United States, Thailand, Singapore and the United Kingdom. Outbound leisure is growing, and domestic leisure and pilgrimage are already enormous - which is exactly the market you sell into.

GST and TCS Quick Reference

A starting point for the two tax lines that come up most in travel sales. Positions change and fact patterns differ, so confirm every figure with your chartered accountant before you rely on it. Checked October 2026.

GST on tour-operator services

Item	Position to start from
Tour-operator service	5 percent GST without input tax credit, with ITC of input services in the same line of business allowed, OR 18 percent with ITC. The 5 percent option has a condition: the bill must be inclusive of the charges for accommodation and transportation, and the amount charged must be the gross amount for the tour.
Hotel accommodation	12 percent where the value of a unit of accommodation is up to Rs 7,500 per unit per day; 18 percent above that.
Restaurant service	5 percent without ITC in most cases; 18 percent at 'specified premises'.
Place of supply	For tour-operator services, generally the location where the services are actually performed. Inbound tours to India attract GST in India even when billed to a foreign client.
Pure agent	Where you bill as a pure agent, GST is charged only on your service fee or commission, not on the pass-through cost. Where you bill as a package, GST applies to the full value.
SAC code	99855 for tour-operator and travel-agency services - confirm the exact heading for your service with your CA.

Two dates to know: GST rate rationalisation took effect on 22 September 2025, and the 57th GST Council meeting on 8 October 2026 made process reforms (faster refunds, wider ITC, simpler registration for small e-commerce sellers) without changing rates. Rate matters are now reviewed once a year.

TCS on overseas travel

Remittance	TCS from 1 April 2026
Overseas tour programme package	A flat 2 percent on each remittance, with no minimum threshold.
Other LRS purposes	Nil up to Rs 10 lakh in a financial year; 20 percent above Rs 10 lakh.
Education or medical treatment (LRS)	Nil up to Rs 10 lakh; 2 percent above Rs 10 lakh. Nil if funded by an education loan from a specified institution.

The Rs 10 lakh LRS threshold is a combined annual limit across all purposes, not a per-trip limit. A 'tour programme package' generally means a package that includes at least two of: an international travel ticket, hotel accommodation or boarding, and any other related expenditure. An overseas tour package no longer has a threshold - the 2 percent applies from the first rupee. TCS is a tax you can claim credit for when filing your return, not a cost - say so to clients.

WhatsApp Marketing Cost Sheet

WhatsApp is where Indian travel sales actually happen, so know what a message costs before you broadcast. These are Meta's published India rates effective 1 October 2026, before any provider fee or tax.

Message type	India rate (per delivered message)
Marketing (promotional templates)	Rs 0.8631
Utility, authentication and service	Rs 0.115
Authentication-international (where it applies)	Rs 2.4971

The rules that changed on 1 October 2026

- Each business phone number gets 1,000 free service messages a month. After that, each delivered service message costs Rs 0.115.
- Utility messages (order confirmations, reminders) are now charged even inside the 24-hour customer service window.
- Marketing and service messages get no volume discounts. Utility tiers start only at very high monthly volume (25 million messages a month in India).
- Meta is moving India to rupee billing: businesses with an India billing country must move their WhatsApp Business accounts to INR by 31 December 2026.
- Provider fees and GST sit on top of Meta's rate. Confirm with your provider whether GST (commonly 18 percent) is added and whether you can claim input tax credit.

What it means in practice: 1,000 marketing messages cost about Rs 863, and 1,000 utility messages about Rs 115. A marketing broadcast is roughly seven and a half times the cost of a utility message in India. So use a marketing template only to open a conversation, then let the traveller's reply move you into the cheaper service window for the itinerary and the quote. Lead each broadcast with one destination, not your whole catalogue.

> The seasonal play
> Segment your list before you send: honeymoon, winter family, group tour, pilgrimage, corporate. A honeymoon offer should go to couples, a group-tour offer to a different segment entirely. Relevance is what makes a Rs 0.86 message profitable.

The AI Tool Stack for Travel Agents

What each tool is genuinely good at for a travel business. Plans and prices in this category change often, so check the current tier on the vendor's own page before you subscribe.

Tool	Best for in a travel business
ChatGPT	General drafting: itineraries, client messages, marketing copy, and turning messy notes into structured output. A strong default.
Claude	Long, careful documents - supplier contracts, policies, and long itineraries where you need it to hold a lot of context and keep the format.
Gemini	Quick research summaries and working inside Google's tools; handy when your agency already runs on Gmail and Docs.
Perplexity	Source-backed answers when you want to see where a claim came from - useful for early destination research before you verify officially.
Canva	Proposal decks, mood boards, quote PDFs and social posts - the presentation layer after the text is written.
WhatsApp Business (API)	The channel itself: templates, broadcasts and the 24-hour service window where the sale is actually made.
A dedicated itinerary tool	Tools built for agents can turn a brief into a structured, branded day-wise itinerary and keep it current in one link. Useful once you are handling volume, but always review before it reaches a client.

Two habits that matter more than the tool choice. First, keep one chat per client so the assistant holds the whole brief and does not make you repeat yourself. Second, keep a prompt library - save the final, working version of each prompt, tagged by task, so you never retype instructions and never lose a version that worked.

Appendix E

The Verification Checklist

Run this every single time before an AI-drafted itinerary, quote or message reaches a client. Fluent is not the same as correct. This list is where you catch the errors.

Before any itinerary goes out

- Hotel names and categories: confirm the property is really the category you specified and has availability for the dates.
- Drive times: check against current road conditions and the season, not a generic average. Models routinely pack too much into one day.
- Permits and passes: Inner Line Permits, forest and sanctuary slots, monument and fort timings - verify locally, never trust a plausible-sounding number.
- Seasonal closures: passes, treks and some parks and hotels close on a calendar the model cannot know reliably.
- Altitude and weather: check that the sequence of days is safe for the group, especially with children or senior citizens.

Before any quote or price goes out

- Every price: your net rates and your markup, never a figure from the model.
- Tax lines: GST and TCS treatment confirmed with your chartered accountant.
- Inclusions and exclusions: unambiguous, and every service not listed is clearly not included.
- Validity date and payment schedule: stated, and realistic against your supplier deadlines.

Before any client-facing message goes out

- Client name, dates and destination are correct, spelled correctly, and match the booking.
- No invented visa fees, opening hours or permit rules.
- Tone fits the relationship - formal for a new client, warm for a repeat one.
- Any assumption the model made is either verified or removed.

> The rule that protects you
> Nothing generated by AI goes to a client until a human who knows the route has checked every timing, permit, closure and price against a current source. That human check is not overhead - it is the service the client is paying you for, and the reason they book with you instead of assembling the trip themselves.

30-Day Season Ramp-Up Plan and Cheat Sheet

One action a day for a month to get your prompts, templates, supplier sheets and campaigns ready before the first big booking week. Do them in order; each one is small.

Day	Action
1-2	Paste the Master Context block into your AI tool. Run Prompt 21 on one real brief and see what the draft gets right and wrong.
3-4	Build your standard quote structure with Prompt 31 and your inclusions block with Prompt 33.
5-6	Set your markup rules with Prompt 32 and build a three-tier quote template with Prompt 35.
7-8	Write and save your enquiry replies (Prompts 1, 3 and 5) so every new lead gets a fast, clean answer.
9-10	Load your supplier rate sheets and write the update request with Prompt 67.
11-12	Build your document and pre-departure checklists (Prompts 52, 54 and 59).
13-14	Set up your follow-up sequence (Prompt 42) and your payment reminder (Prompt 96).
15-16	Plan a month of content with Prompts 71 and 72, and write your first broadcast with Prompt 75.
17-18	Set your WhatsApp cost budget using Appendix C and segment your contact list.
19-20	Write your review request (Prompt 81) and referral programme (Prompt 83).
21-22	Confirm your GST and TCS positions with your CA using Appendix B as the brief.
23-24	Build your cash-flow view (Prompt 95) and your cancellation policy (Prompt 97).
25-26	Run the verification checklist (Appendix E) on everything you have built.
27-28	Train the team: share the Master Context block and three saved prompts each.
29-30	Launch: send your early-bird campaign (Prompt 85) and your season broadcast.

The one-page cheat sheet

- Draft with AI, decide with your judgement, verify with a current source. In that order, every time.
- Never let a model invent a price, a drive time, a visa fee or a permit rule. 'Confirm locally' is a complete answer.
- Ask what it assumed, then check the assumptions.
- Lead a broadcast with one destination, not your catalogue.
- Use a marketing template to open the conversation, then sell inside the cheaper service window.
- Always show a three-tier quote. Choice closes more bookings than a single price.
- Protect your margin: never discount without removing or changing something.
- Chase the follow-up. Most bookings are won in the second or third message, not the first.

- The review ask is part of the service, not an extra. Ask the day they return.
- Pilgrimage, domestic leisure and outbound travel are all growing. Sell into the real calendar in Appendix A.

A last word

This pack gives you speed and structure. The judgement, the relationships and the honesty with your clients are still yours - and they are what people are really paying for. Use AI to do the assembly so you can spend your time where it earns: the brief, the plan and the follow-up.
