Digital Edition

A working toolkit for Indian wedding photographers and videographers: 100 copy-paste AI prompts plus the verified 2026-27 season playbook. Open it on the day of an enquiry and start using it in five minutes.

Who this pack is for

You shoot weddings for a living in India — solo, or running a small studio with a couple of shooters and an editor. You are good behind the camera. What costs you money is everything around it: the enquiry that goes cold because you replied six hours late, the quote that looks like a WhatsApp text, the follow-up you forgot, the Instagram grid that went quiet in peak season, and the album that drags until the final payment slips.

This pack puts an AI assistant to work on exactly that. Every prompt is written for the Indian wedding business: WhatsApp enquiries, per-function pricing in rupees, GST on the invoice, UPI advances, haldi–mehendi–sangeet–wedding–reception timelines, and the muhurat-driven calendar that makes our season so short and so crowded.

How to use this pack

1. Pick your AI assistant. Any good chat assistant works — a paid plan on ChatGPT, Google Gemini or Claude is the easiest. Nothing here needs special software.
2. Copy one prompt at a time. Fill the square brackets with your real details (your city, your package, the client's date). Do not paste five prompts at once.
3. Paste your own facts. The prompts are templates. The more real detail you feed in — your actual coverage hours, your actual deliverables — the more useful the output.
4. Edit before you send. Treat every output as a first draft. Read it aloud. Cut anything that does not sound like you. Never send raw AI text to a client.
5. Keep your voice. Clients book a person, not a script. Use the prompts to get to a strong draft faster, then make it yours.

The 6-part prompt formula

Every strong prompt in this pack follows the same shape. Learn it once and you can write your own for any situation.

Part	What it does	Example
Role	Tells the AI who to be	"You are a booking manager for a wedding photography studio in Jaipur."
Context	Your real business facts	"We shoot candid + traditional, packages from Rs. 65,000, GST extra, 3-4 person crew."
Task	The one thing you want	"Write a reply to this enquiry that qualifies the date and budget."
Input	The raw material	The client's WhatsApp message, their date, their city, their functions.
Format	How the answer should look	"Under 120 words, WhatsApp-friendly, no emojis, one clear question at the end."
Rule	What NOT to do	"No income promises, no fake scarcity, do not quote a final price yet."

The golden rule: the AI never invents a fact about your business
Your coverage hours, your deliverables, your turnaround time, your price — only you know these. Feed them in. If you let the AI guess, it will happily invent "unlimited edited photos" and you will be the one honouring it on the wedding day.

Use AI safely and honestly (read this once)

- Never paste a client's personal data into an AI tool without a reason. Under India's Digital Personal Data Protection Act, 2023, names, phone numbers and photographs are personal data. Strip phone numbers and full names before you paste an enquiry.
- Get written consent before you post a couple's photos. As the photographer you usually hold copyright in the images, but portfolio and social posting is a separate permission. Put a one-line consent clause in your contract (Appendix D has one).
- No invented results. Never let the AI write "we got you 200% more bookings" or any number you cannot prove. Indian buyers increasingly check reviews and claims — the WedMeGood 2025-26 report found 1 in 3 couples check online reviews before booking a vendor.
- Human review, always. AI drafts; you decide. Check dates, prices and deliverables on every message before it leaves your phone.
- Do not let AI do the part that is actually you. The photographs, the eye, the relationship, the being-present-in-the-room — that is your business. AI handles admin.

The 2026-27 Season, In Numbers

Know the market you are selling into

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Before a single prompt, understand the market you are pitching into. Every number below is from an official or industry source and is current as of October 2026. Use them to price with confidence and to plan your season.

The market you are selling into

Fact	Number	Source
Indian wedding market (annual)	~Rs. 10.8 lakh crore ($130 bn), growing ~20-25% a year	Industry estimates (IBEF / trade reports)
Avg. wedding budget (premium platform users)	Rs. 39.5 lakh, up ~8% year-on-year	WedMeGood Annual Wedding Industry Report 2025-26
Avg. destination wedding	Rs. 58 lakh; ~25% of weddings are destination, ~90% of those within India	WedMeGood 2025-26
Most expensive wedding city (avg.)	Jaipur Rs. 73 lakh; Delhi Rs. 38 L; Bangalore / Hyderabad Rs. 37 L; Mumbai Rs. 35 L	WedMeGood 2025-26
Photography's share of a wedding	Commonly quoted at ~8%, but no primary source publishes a category split — price from your costs, not a percentage	Fotobee analysis, Oct 2026
Median listed day rate (studios, mid-2026)	Mumbai Rs. 70k, Delhi NCR Rs. 70k, Pune Rs. 57.5k, Bangalore Rs. 50k, Indore Rs. 42.5k	Fotobee study of listed studio rates, Jul 2026
Vendors already using AI	~24% of wedding professionals use AI (editing, moodboards, content, communication)	WedMeGood 2025-26
Couples who check reviews before booking	1 in 3	WedMeGood 2025-26

Why this matters to you

Roughly a quarter of your competitors are already using AI to reply faster and produce more content. In a business where speed-to-first-reply decides who wins the enquiry, that is the whole game. This pack is how you join the 24% — in an afternoon, not a season.

The 2026-27 muhurat calendar — and your pitch window

Indian weddings cluster into a few windows set by the panchang and go dark for weeks between them. That shape is your entire sales calendar. Here is the run from November 2026 to July 2027, as computed from a standard North Indian Vedic panchang (DrikPanchang and MyPandit agree on the 2026 dates shown).

Window	Muhurat dates	What it means for you
Nov 2026	21, 24, 25, 26 (4)	Season reopens after Chaturmas. Whole country waited four months — enquiries spike hard.
Dec 2026	2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 11, 12 (7)	Short, packed window. The most competitive dates of the year.
Kharmas	13 Dec 2026 – 14 Jan 2027 (0)	Dead zone. Use it for album delivery, editing backlog and next-season pipeline.
Jan 2027	15, 18, 19, 20, 24, 26, 27, 30, 31 (9)	Season reopens. Great month for delivery follow-ups and referrals.
Feb 2027	2, 3, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 28 (13)	Densest month of the winter window. Staff up early.
Mar 2027	1, 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 14 (7)	Last winter dates; 15-31 Mar is a blocked solar month.
Apr-Jul 2027	18 Apr – 12 Jul (main season; May ~18 dates, Jun ~16)	The year's biggest run. Lock vendor rates and crew now.
Chaturmas	~17 Jul – ~20 Nov 2027 (0)	The long gap. Sell honeymoon, maternity, newborn and pre-wedding work.

Always confirm the date with the family's pandit
Panchangs genuinely disagree — AstroSage, Prokerala and DrikPanchang list different November 2026 dates. Treat this table as a planning signal for your own sales calendar and staffing, never as the couple's final muhurat. The family priest's panchang governs.

Where bookings actually come from

Indian photography enquiries arrive through five channels. Most studios over-invest in the slowest one and under-serve the fastest.

Channel	Why it converts	Your move
Instagram DMs	Highest volume for candid and destination studios; warm, pre-sold leads	Reply inside 5 minutes; keep a saved-reply menu
WhatsApp (referrals)	Highest trust; the couple's family is already comparing two studios	One clean thread per enquiry; never a wall of voice notes
Google search / Maps	High intent: "wedding photographer [your city]"	Get 20+ Google reviews; keep hours and phone current
Wedding planners	B2B referrals with higher average ticket size	Send planners a one-page package sheet each season

Channel	Why it converts	Your move
Wedding expos / fairs	Seasonal bursts; quality varies	Collect dates and budgets on the spot, follow up in 24 hours

The five leaks that cost you bookings

1. Slow first reply. Couples message three studios at once and book the one that answers first with a clear package. A six-hour reply is often a lost booking.
2. Unclear quotes. "Full wedding package: Rs. 1,15,000" invites negotiation. Per-function pricing with deliverables written out closes.
3. No follow-up system. Most bookings are won on the second or third touch. Without a schedule, enquiries go cold while you are shooting.
4. Silent Instagram in peak season. The month you are busiest is the month you most need content going out. Batch it in advance.
5. Slow post-production. A gallery that drags past the promised date delays the final payment and kills the referral.

Parts 2 to 9 of this pack are built to plug each of these five leaks, in order. Part 10 turns it into a 30-day plan.

2 Enquiries & First Reply

Prompts 1-12 — win the first five minutes

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Speed and clarity decide the enquiry. These prompts give you a reply that lands in minutes, sounds like you, and moves the couple one step forward — without quoting a final price too early.

1. The 5-minute first reply

Use the moment a WhatsApp or Instagram enquiry lands. Fast, warm, one question.

```
You are the booking manager for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography and film studio in [CITY]. We shoot candid + traditional in a documentary style. Packages start from Rs. [STARTING PRICE] for a single-day wedding.

A couple has just enquired. Their message: "[PASTE THE ENQUIRY]".

Write a WhatsApp reply, under 90 words. It must: thank them by first name if given, confirm we are available to check their date, ask for (1) the wedding date, (2) the city/venue, (3) how many functions, and give our starting price range honestly. Warm and professional Indian English. No emojis. No final quote yet. End with one clear question.
```

Make it yours: Save the output as a WhatsApp quick reply so you can send it in under a minute.

2. Instagram DM reply that does not feel like a bot

For Instagram enquiries, which feel more casual than WhatsApp.

```
You run the Instagram account of [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY]. A couple DMs: "[PASTE DM]".

Reply in a friendly, human Instagram tone (short sentences, one emoji maximum). Under 80 words. Acknowledge something specific from their message if they mentioned it. Move the conversation to WhatsApp for details: give our number [NUMBER]. Ask for their wedding date and city. Do not send a price list in the DM.
```

Make it yours: Moving to WhatsApp is the goal — DMs are where enquiries die. Keep the DM short and redirect.

3. The enquiry acknowledgement when you are shooting

Peak-season auto-reply for the 8 hours you cannot look at your phone.

```
Write a short WhatsApp auto-reply for [STUDIO NAME] for days when we are on a shoot and cannot reply for a few hours. Under 55 words. It should: say we are currently on a shoot, promise a personal reply the same evening, ask them to share their wedding date, city and number of functions so we can come prepared, and give our starting price range so they are not left guessing. Warm, not robotic.
```

Make it yours: Paste this into WhatsApp Business > Away Message so no enquiry sits unanswered during a shoot.

4. Ask the one question that pre-sells everything

For warm enquiries who have clearly looked at your work.

```
You are [PHOTOGRAPHER NAME] of [STUDIO NAME]. A couple wrote: "[PASTE ENQUIRY]". Before I give any package information, I want to ask one genuine question that starts the conversation about what they actually want, not price. Write a short message (under 70 words) that: thanks them warmly, references one specific thing from their message, asks them to describe what their wedding will be like and what they hope to feel when they look at the photos in twenty years, and mentions we reply with package options after that. Indian English, warm, confident.
```

Make it yours: This is the highest-converting move in the whole pack. It reframes the conversation from price to vision.

5. Handle an enquiry that only asks "price?"

For the two-word message every studio gets.

```
A couple messaged [STUDIO NAME] only: "Price?" Write a WhatsApp reply (under 80 words) that does not feel defensive. Give an honest starting price for a single-day wedding (Rs. [X]), say the final price depends on number of functions, city and deliverables, and ask for their date and number of functions to send a proper quote. Confident, warm, no apology for having a price.
```

Make it yours: Never answer "price?" with a bare number. Always pair the number with what it includes and the next question.

6. Enquiry for a date you are already booked on

Turn a no into a referral and a future booking.

```
We are [STUDIO NAME]. We are already booked on [DATE]. A couple enquired for that date. Write a WhatsApp reply (under 80 words) that: tells them honestly we are booked that day, thanks them for considering us, offers to recommend two trusted photographer friends in [CITY] if they would like, and says we would love to work with them for any other function, pre-wedding or a future date. Warm and generous, no fake alternatives we do not have.
```

Make it yours: Recommending a good competitor builds your reputation and they will return the favour. Never say "booked" and stop.

7. The out-of-town / destination enquiry reply

When the wedding is in another city or state.

```
You are the booking manager at [STUDIO NAME] in [CITY]. A couple enquired about a wedding in [DESTINATION CITY / VENUE], a [NUMBER]-day event on [DATES]. Write a WhatsApp reply (under 100 words) that: confirms we shoot destination weddings, explains that outstation quotes include travel, stay and a per-day rate on top of the package, asks for the venue, dates and number of functions, and mentions we will send a destination quote within 24 hours. Professional, no vague "will get back".
```

Make it yours: Destination work has real travel costs. Say so early — surprises at invoicing kill trust.

8. Reply to an NRI couple across time zones

For enquiries from abroad who may be asleep when you reply.

```
A couple based in [COUNTRY] enquired about a wedding in [CITY] on [DATE]. Write a WhatsApp reply (under 95 words) from [STUDIO NAME] that: acknowledges the time difference and gives our working hours in IST, asks for their wedding dates and functions, offers a short video call at a time that suits them, and gives our starting price range in INR. Mention we can share a complete gallery so they can judge full-wedding quality, not just reels. Clear, reassuring, no jargon.
```

Make it yours: NRI couples cannot visit your studio. Offer a full-gallery link and a call — that is your proof.

9. Follow-up when the couple opened your reply and went quiet

The polite nudge that revives a cold enquiry without nagging.

```
You are [STUDIO NAME]. A couple enquired about [DATE] in [CITY] and we replied with our starting price and asked for details. They read the message but did not reply for 3 days. Write a WhatsApp follow-up (under 60 words): no guilt-tripping, no "just following up", instead give something useful — offer to send two full wedding galleries so they can see our complete work, and ask one easy question ("Is [DATE] still the plan?"). Friendly, low-pressure.
```

Make it yours: Lead the follow-up with a gift (full galleries), not a demand. It converts far better.

10. Reply to an enquiry that arrived at 1 a.m.

Midnight enquiries are common and hot — handle the morning reply well.

```
A couple messaged [STUDIO NAME] at 1 a.m.: "[PASTE]". Write our morning reply (under 85 words). Start by noting we saw their message overnight and are replying first thing. Confirm availability to check their date, ask for date, city and functions, and share our starting price range. Warm and prompt-feeling. No emojis.
```

Make it yours: Reply first thing, before coffee. The couple messaged three studios at 1 a.m.; you want to be first.

11. Enquiry for a small / intimate wedding

Do not lose the smaller booking — they refer well and often grow.

```
A couple in [CITY] is planning an intimate wedding of about [NUMBER] guests on [DATE], one function only. Write a WhatsApp reply from [STUDIO NAME] (under 85 words) that welcomes intimate weddings genuinely, gives an honest starting price for a single-function day (Rs. [X]), explains what is included (hours, photographer count, edited photos, delivery time), and asks their date and venue. Warm, respectful, no hint that a small wedding is less important to us.
```

Make it yours: Intimate weddings are faster to shoot and refer heavily. Price them properly, not as "small".

12. The enquiry reply that ends with a booking

For a warm couple ready to move — make the next step obvious.

```
You are [STUDIO NAME]. A couple has replied to our quote and said they like our work. Write a WhatsApp message (under 90 words) that makes the next step crystal clear: explains that to block [DATE] we take a [30]% booking advance, confirms the date is on soft hold for 48 hours, lists what we need from them (names, venue, functions, any add-ons), and gives our UPI ID and a payment link. Warm, confident, no pressure tactics. End by saying we will send the agreement the moment the advance is in.
```

Make it yours: The advance is the booking. Do not calendar a wedding on a verbal yes — and say so kindly.

3 Qualification & Consultation

Prompts 13-22 — spend your time on the right couples

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Not every enquiry deserves a two-hour consultation and a custom proposal. These prompts help you qualify quickly, run a professional consultation, and set expectations that prevent disputes later.

13. The 10-minute qualification call script

Before you invest hours in a consultation and proposal.

```
You are a senior booking manager at [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY]. Write a short qualification call script (bullet points, under 150 words total) to run in 10 minutes. It must uncover: wedding date and city, number of functions and their days, approximate guest count, whether it is candid or traditional or both, who is the decision-maker, and their budget range. Include exactly how to ask about budget without sounding pushy, and one line to politely end the call if it is clearly not a fit.
```

Make it yours: Qualify before you propose. A 10-minute call saves you a wasted afternoon and an awkward "no".

14. Build a pre-consultation questionnaire

Send before every consultation so the call is efficient.

```
Create a WhatsApp-friendly pre-consultation questionnaire (numbered questions, under 12 items) for couples enquiring with [STUDIO NAME]. Cover: full names, wedding date(s) and city, venue, number of functions and their names, guest count, photo and video or photo only, style preference, any must-have moments, budget range, and how they found us. Keep each question short and easy to answer on a phone. Add one line explaining why we ask.
```

Make it yours: Collect it before the call so you arrive prepared and the couple feels looked after.

15. Explain your process in plain language

For the consultation, when couples ask "how does this work?"

```
Write a clear, friendly explanation (under 160 words) of how booking with [STUDIO NAME] works, from first enquiry to final album. Steps: enquiry, consultation call, package selection, [30]% booking advance to block the date, agreement signed, pre-wedding call and shot-list planning two weeks before, shoot day, preview within [X] days, final gallery and film within [Y] days, album design and delivery. Write it in simple Indian English a couple's parents can follow. No jargon.
```

Make it yours: Families, not just couples, read this. Simple language wins the elders' trust.

16. Set delivery expectations honestly, up front

Prevent the "where are our photos?" call later.

```
Write a short, honest message (under 100 words) from [STUDIO NAME] explaining our delivery timeline to a new client: a preview set of [X] photos within [Y] days, the full edited gallery within [Z] weeks, the highlight film within [W] weeks, and the printed album within [V] weeks after final selection. Explain politely that peak season can add a little time and that we will always tell them in advance. Warm and clear, no over-promising.
```

Make it yours: Say the timeline out loud at booking and put it in the contract. Most disputes are expectation, not work.

17. Handle "we are comparing three photographers"

When a couple tells you they are shopping around.

```
A couple told [STUDIO NAME] they are comparing three photographers for [DATE]. Write a WhatsApp reply (under 100 words) that: welcomes the comparison, gives them three specific questions to ask every photographer (full-gallery access, exact deliverables and turnaround, who actually shoots on the day), answers how we handle each one, and invites them to see a complete gallery. Confident, helpful, no criticism of the other studios.
```

Make it yours: Never bad-mouth competitors. Give the couple better questions and let the answers do the work.

18. Answer "do you have a cheaper package?"

Protect your rate without losing the couple.

```
A couple asked [STUDIO NAME] for a cheaper option than our Rs. [X] package. Write a reply (under 95 words) that does not discount the rate. Instead, offer to reduce the scope: fewer coverage hours, one photographer instead of two, no album, or photo-only instead of photo + film. Show the honest price of the reduced scope. End by asking which functions matter most to them so we can build the right fit. Warm and solution-focused.
```

Make it yours: Negotiate scope, never your rate. The moment you discount, your price becomes the first topic forever.

19. Explain why your price is what it is

When a couple asks why you cost more than a cheaper studio.

```
Write a confident, non-defensive explanation (under 120 words) from [STUDIO NAME] of what a wedding photography price actually pays for: the crew on the day, hours of editing per hour shot, colour grading, an album, backup storage, insurance of the day, and a delivery timeline we stand behind. Frame it as value, not cost. No comparison to specific competitors. Indian English, proud but not arrogant.
```

Make it yours: Educate, do not justify. Couples pay more once they understand what editing actually takes.

20. Consultation call agenda you can send ahead

Make the call feel organised and professional.

```
Create a one-page consultation agenda that [STUDIO NAME] sends to a couple before a call. Include: what we will cover (their functions and dates, our style and approach, package options, deliverables and timelines, advance and payment, next steps), how long it will take (about 30 minutes), what they should keep handy (dates, venue details, guest count), and who will be on the call. Clean, warm, mobile-friendly. Under 150 words.
```

Make it yours: An agenda makes a small studio feel like a studio, not a freelancer with a phone.

21. Turn a "no" into a future client

For couples who chose someone else.

```
A couple chose another photographer for their [DATE] wedding in [CITY]. Write a gracious message (under 70 words) from [STUDIO NAME] that: thanks them for considering us, wishes them a beautiful wedding, invites them to follow our work, and gently mentions we also shoot pre-wedding, maternity, newborn and family sessions. No bitterness, no pushiness. Indian English, warm.
```

Make it yours: A graceful no often becomes next year's maternity or sibling's wedding booking.

22. Ask for the details you need to quote well

The single message that collects everything for an accurate quote.

```
Write a single WhatsApp message (under 120 words) from [STUDIO NAME] that collects everything needed to quote a wedding accurately: names, wedding date(s), city and venue, list of functions with their days, approximate guest count, photo only or photo + video, whether they want drone, album and reels add-ons, and their budget range. Present it as a short, friendly checklist, not an interrogation. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: One well-designed message beats ten back-and-forth questions — and it makes you look organised.

4 Proposals, Quotes & Packages

Prompts 23-36 — the quote that closes

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

A strong Indian photography proposal works for the whole family, opens cleanly on a phone, and prices per function. These prompts build the quote, the three-tier package, the add-on menu and the terms — the paperwork that protects your margin.

23. Write the full wedding proposal

Your main sales document. Adapt per couple.

You are [PHOTOGRAPHER NAME] of [STUDIO NAME] in [CITY]. Write a warm, professional wedding photography proposal for [COUPLE NAMES], wedding on [DATE] at [VENUE], with functions: [LIST FUNCTIONS].

Include sections: a short personal intro referencing what they said about their vision; our approach and style; the per-function plan; deliverables in plain language (edited photos count, films, reels, album); the investment with per-function pricing and GST stated as [inclusive/exclusive]; the payment schedule ([30]% advance, [50]% before the event, [20]% before delivery); timeline; and next steps.

Format for mobile: short lines, no dense paragraphs. Under 600 words. Indian English. No income or result promises.
```

Make it yours: Keep it mobile-first. The couple's mother will open it on an Android phone — if it does not load cleanly, you lose.

24. The three-tier package (good / better / best)

Give three options so the couple chooses a package, not whether to book.

```
```

Make it yours: Three options shift the decision from "yes or no" to "which one". Price the middle tier as your target.

25. Per-function pricing breakdown

Clear line-item pricing instead of one lump sum.

```
Write a per-function pricing table for a [NUMBER]-function wedding for [STUDIO NAME]: [LIST: e.g. Haldi, Mehendi, Sangeet, Wedding, Reception]. For each function give hours of coverage, crew, deliverables and a price in rupees. Add a subtotal, then GST at 18%, then the total, then the [30]% booking advance amount. Explain in one line that a per-function breakdown lets them add or drop functions later without renegotiating the whole package. Present as a clean table with an intro and a short closing line.
```

Make it yours: Line items do the arguing for you. "Can you add 10 more album pages free?" now has an obvious answer.

26. Build the add-on menu

The quiet profit centre of every wedding booking.

```
Create an add-on menu for [STUDIO NAME] with an honest starting price in rupees for each: extra coverage hour, additional shooter, drone coverage (DGCA-compliant), same-day edit, extra reels pack, pre-wedding shoot, additional printed album, extra USB copies for parents, RAW file handover, and outstation travel. For each, give one line on what it is and one on when it is worth adding. Keep it short and scannable. Add a note that add-ons can be added up to [X] days before the event.
```

Make it yours: Send the add-on menu with every proposal. Most couples add at least one — if you offer it.

27. Write the deliverables in plain language

Remove every "I thought that was included" argument.

```
Rewrite these deliverables in plain, unambiguous language for a wedding photography contract, so a non-technical family understands exactly what they get: [PASTE YOUR CURRENT DELIVERABLE LIST]. For each, state the exact number, format, resolution if relevant, and the delivery date relative to the wedding. Explicitly state what is NOT included (RAW files, extra revisions, prints beyond the album, usage rights). No jargon. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Spelling out what is excluded prevents the dispute. Vague inclusions cost you money later.

28. The advance, payment and GST clause

Get paid on time, every time.

```
Write a clear payment terms section for [STUDIO NAME]'s wedding photography agreement. Include: [30]% booking advance to block the date; [50]% before or on the shoot day; [20]% before final delivery; accepted payment methods (UPI, bank transfer, payment link); the rule that the date is not blocked until the advance is received; that GST at 18% applies if we are registered and whether quotes are inclusive or exclusive; that the full gallery releases on balance clearance; and a line on the late-payment follow-up. Plain Indian English, under 200 words.
```

Make it yours: Tie final gallery delivery to the balance. It is the single most effective way to get paid on time.

29. Rescheduling and cancellation terms

The clause you will thank yourself for.

```
Write rescheduling and cancellation terms for [STUDIO NAME]'s agreement. Cover: a reschedule requested [X]+ days before the event (free, advance moves to the new date); a reschedule within [X] days (a small re-blocking fee); cancellation by the client (advance is non-refundable but can be used for another date within [Y] months); cancellation by us (full refund plus help finding a replacement photographer); and force majeure (natural events, government restrictions). Plain language, fair to both sides, under 180 words.
```

Make it yours: Fair, clear terms build trust. Couples rarely argue with a policy they were shown at booking.

30. The usage-rights and portfolio-consent clause

Protect your right to show your own work — and the couple's privacy.

```
Write a short, plain-language clause for [STUDIO NAME]'s agreement covering usage rights and privacy. State that the studio holds copyright in the images under the Copyright Act, that the couple receives personal-use rights to print and share, that we will ask for written consent before featuring their photos on our website or social media, and that they may choose to keep their images private. Under 130 words, respectful of privacy, no legalese.
```

Make it yours: Get the consent in writing — a WhatsApp "yes" is fine. Never post a couple's photos without it.

31. Proposal for a destination wedding

Higher ticket, higher logistics — quote it properly.

```
Write a destination wedding photography proposal for [STUDIO NAME] for [COUPLE] at [VENUE, CITY] on [DATES], a [NUMBER]-day event. Include: our approach for destination work, a per-day package rate, a separate line for travel (flights/train), accommodation and local transport for the crew of [N], a note on DGCA-compliant drone permissions, the deliverables, the investment with GST, the payment schedule, and a line that outstation travel is billed at actuals. Professional, warm, under 550 words.
```

Make it yours: Always show travel, stay and per-day rate as separate lines. Bundling them hides your margin.

32. Quote for photo + video together

Bundle correctly so you do not underprice the film.

```
A couple wants both photography and cinematography from [STUDIO NAME] for a [NUMBER]-function wedding. Write a combined quote (under 400 words) that shows photo and video as separate line items with their own crews and deliverables, then a combined total with a small bundle saving. Explain the value of one team covering both (no competing crews, one shared shot list, coordinated editing). Include the highlight film length, reels and turnaround. Indian English, clean table format, GST stated.
```

Make it yours: Never price photo+video as "photo plus a little extra". A film is a second crew and a second edit.

33. Present the quote as a comparison, not a wall of text

Make the choice easy on a phone screen.

```
Turn this package information into a clean, mobile-friendly comparison layout for a couple: [PASTE YOUR PACKAGES AND PRICES]. Show the three tiers side by side with tick marks for what each includes, a clear price for each, and a highlighted "most chosen" middle tier. Add one line under the table telling them how to book (advance amount and payment link). Keep it scannable in under 30 seconds.
```

Make it yours: A comparison table converts better than paragraphs because the couple can see the trade-off instantly.

34. Explain GST to a couple, simply

Answer "why is there 18% extra?" without a tax lecture.

```
Write a short, friendly explanation (under 90 words) for a couple asking why [STUDIO NAME]'s quote shows GST separately. Explain simply that photography and videography services attract 18% GST in India, that we are registered and must charge it, that it applies whether the shoot is a wedding, event or commercial job, and that our quote is [exclusive/inclusive] of GST. One reassuring line that the invoice will be fully compliant. Plain Indian English, no jargon.
```

Make it yours: State inclusive vs exclusive at quoting time, never at invoicing time. Surprises damage trust.

35. A proposal cover note that feels personal

The first thing the couple reads — make it about them.

```
Write a short proposal cover note (under 110 words) from [STUDIO NAME] to [COUPLE NAMES] for their wedding on [DATE] at [VENUE]. Reference one specific detail they told us about their wedding or their vision. Do not list packages here — just warmth, a line about why we would love to shoot their day, and a pointer to the details below. Indian English, sincere, no clichés like "your special day".
```

Make it yours: The cover note decides whether they read the rest. One specific detail beats ten generic compliments.

36. Check your proposal before you send it

A final proofing pass that catches embarrassing errors.

```
You are a careful editor. Review this wedding photography proposal for errors and risks: [PASTE PROPOSAL]. Check and report on: (1) any promised deliverable with no number or date; (2) any price that is unclear about GST; (3) any claim that could be read as an income or result guarantee; (4) any place where the couple's names, date or venue are wrong or missing; (5) any sentence that sounds pushy or generic. List the issues as a short checklist with a suggested fix for each. Do not rewrite the whole proposal.
```

Make it yours: Run every proposal through this before sending. It catches the errors that quietly cost you bookings.

5 Follow-Up & Negotiation

Prompts 37-48 — where most bookings are actually won

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Most bookings are won on the second or third touch, not the first. These prompts give you a follow-up schedule you can actually keep, plus calm, professional ways to handle the hard conversations — price pushback, scope creep, ghosting and the "can you do it cheaper" message.

37. The 24-hour / 3-day / 7-day follow-up sequence

Set it up once and never lose an enquiry to silence again.

```
Write a three-message follow-up sequence for [STUDIO NAME] for a couple who enquired about [DATE] and went quiet after our first reply. Message 1 (24 hours): friendly, offer two full wedding galleries to review. Message 2 (3 days): share one relevant recent wedding from their city or venue, ask if the date is still the plan. Message 3 (7 days): a light, final check-in that leaves the door open without pressure, and mentions we can hold the date briefly if they are deciding. Each under 60 words, no guilt-tripping, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Space the touches out. Three calm messages beat one desperate one.

38. Follow-up after you sent a proposal

Proposals do not close themselves.

```
A couple received [STUDIO NAME]'s proposal for [DATE] two days ago and has not replied. Write a WhatsApp follow-up (under 70 words) that: assumes they are busy, asks if any part of the package needs adjusting, offers to jump on a quick 10-minute call to walk them through it, and reminds them gently that [DATE] is a busy one. Warm and helpful, no pressure, no "just checking in".
```

Make it yours: Ask what to adjust, not whether they liked it. The first invites a reply; the second invites silence.

39. Handle "your price is too high"

The most common objection in Indian wedding sales.

```
A couple said [STUDIO NAME]'s quote for [DATE] is too high compared to another studio. Write a reply (under 110 words) that: thanks them for being honest, does not discount, asks which specific part feels high, offers two concrete ways to fit their budget (reduce coverage hours, drop the album, photo-only instead of photo + film), and re-states the value of what we include that cheaper quotes usually leave out. Calm, respectful, no defensiveness, no criticism of the other studio.
```

Make it yours: Never lower the rate in the first reply. Offer scope options and let them choose.

40. Handle "can you match this price?"

When a couple shows you a cheaper quote.

```
A couple sent [STUDIO NAME] a screenshot of another studio's lower quote for [DATE] and asked us to match it. Write a polite reply (under 100 words) that: explains we do not match other quotes because we do not know what is included in them, lists three specific things to check in any quote (full-gallery access, exact deliverables, delivery timeline), offers to send a scope-adjusted option of our own within their budget, and asks what their maximum budget is so we can be straight with them. Confident, not defensive.
```

Make it yours: Do not match numbers you cannot see. Redirect to scope and to what the cheaper quote leaves out.

41. Handle scope creep politely

When the couple keeps adding work without adding budget.

```
A couple booked [STUDIO NAME] for [DATE] and has now asked, over several messages, to add extra coverage hours, an extra function, and more edited photos, without mentioning extra cost. Write a warm but firm reply (under 100 words) that: happily confirms what is already included, gently explains that each addition is chargeable and gives a price for each, offers to update the package and invoice so everything is clear, and reassures them we want them to have everything they want. Professional, never annoyed.
```

Make it yours: Price every addition in writing within 48 hours, while the enthusiasm is fresh. Verbal add-ons get forgotten.

42. Chase a pending advance without souring the relationship

For a date on hold that the advance has not confirmed.

```
A couple told [STUDIO NAME] they want [DATE] and we sent the agreement and advance details [N] days ago, but the advance has not come. Write a follow-up (under 85 words) that: assumes they are busy with planning, restates the amount and how to pay (UPI or link), gently explains that the date is on soft hold and we have had another enquiry for it, and offers to answer any questions about the agreement. Warm, clear, no threat.
```

Make it yours: Mentioning another enquiry is only honest if it is true. Never invent scarcity.

43. Ask for the booking when the couple is hesitating

The gentle close that many photographers never use.

```
A couple loves [STUDIO NAME]'s work for [DATE] but keeps saying "we will confirm soon" across several messages. Write a short, confident message (under 90 words) that: asks directly and kindly if they would like us to block the date, explains the [30]% advance and the 48-hour hold, and gives one clear next step. No pressure, no manipulation — just an honest, professional ask. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Most couples are waiting for you to ask. A clear, kind close is not pushy — it is service.

44. Reply to a couple negotiating hard on price

When the negotiation is becoming uncomfortable.

```
A couple is pushing hard for a large discount on [STUDIO NAME]'s [DATE] package and has asked three times. Write a firm but gracious reply (under 100 words) that: restates our final offer with a clear scope, explains kindly that we cannot go lower without cutting quality we are not willing to cut, gives them a smaller scope option if budget is truly the limit, and says we completely understand if they need to look elsewhere. Respectful, no frustration.
```

Make it yours: Know your walk-away number before the conversation and do not cross it. A hard no protects every future booking.

45. Revive a dead enquiry from last season

Old enquiries are a goldmine at the start of a season.

```
Write a short, warm re-engagement message (under 80 words) from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple who enquired last year but did not book. Reference the new [2026-27] season, mention we are now booking [DATE RANGE], offer to send our updated package sheet, and ask if their plans are still on. Do not mention that they did not book. Friendly, no awkwardness, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: One message to last season's enquiries often produces a booking with zero ad spend.

46. Follow up after a wedding expo or fair

Strike while the memory is fresh.

```
Write a follow-up WhatsApp message (under 75 words) from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple we met at [EXPO / FAIR NAME] in [CITY] on [DATE]. Remind them of one thing we discussed, offer to send two full galleries and our package sheet, ask for their wedding date and city, and give a light nudge that dates for [MONTH] are filling. Warm, personal, no hard sell.
```

Make it yours: Follow up within 24 hours of the expo. After a week, the lead is gone.

47. Ask a planner or venue for a referral, properly

B2B referrals carry the highest ticket sizes.

```
Write a short, professional message (under 110 words) from [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY], to a wedding planner / venue we would like to work with. Introduce us briefly, mention the venues and wedding types we shoot, offer to send a one-page package sheet and a couple of full galleries, and propose that we shoot a sample of their next event at a reduced rate so they can judge our work. No request for immediate business. Respectful, specific, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Give before you ask. A reduced-rate sample for a planner often becomes a season of referrals.

48. The "we found someone cheaper" reply

End the conversation well — you may still win the family.

```
A couple told [STUDIO NAME] they have decided to go with a cheaper photographer for [DATE]. Write a short, gracious reply (under 70 words) that: thanks them sincerely for considering us, wishes them a wonderful wedding, asks if we can stay in touch for future sessions (pre-wedding, maternity, newborn, family), and offers a genuine one-line tip about getting the best from any photographer (for example, asking for a full gallery before booking). No bitterness, no last-minute discount.
```

Make it yours: Never discount in the goodbye. It tells them your earlier price was never real.

6 Client Experience & Logistics

Prompts 49-62 — run the shoot like a studio

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

The shoot day is only one day; the client experience runs for months around it. These prompts handle the planning, the shot lists, the family group photos, the day-before reminders and the consent paperwork that separate a professional studio from a person with a camera.

49. The pre-wedding vision questionnaire

Send 2-3 weeks before the wedding to plan deliberately.

```
Create a pre-wedding questionnaire (numbered, under 14 items) for [STUDIO NAME] to send a couple 2-3 weeks before their wedding on [DATE]. Cover: the couple's story and how they met; the three moments they most want captured; family members who must be photographed; any sensitive family situations we should handle carefully; the schedule of functions; key vendors (makeup, planner, venue contact); the mood and style they love; and anything that would make them uncomfortable. Friendly, warm, mobile-friendly, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: The question about sensitive family situations prevents the most awkward moments on the day.

50. Generate a shot list for any function

Per-function, every time. Paste the function and venue.

```
You are a senior wedding photographer in India. Create a detailed shot list for a [FUNCTION, e.g. Haldi / Mehendi / Sangeet / Wedding / Reception] at [VENUE], [CITY], with [NUMBER] guests, in a [candid/traditional] style. Organise the list by phase: getting ready, entry, key rituals (name the specific rituals for this function), family moments, couple portraits, detail shots, and candid guest moments. Give 25-35 specific shots, each one line, using Indian wedding vocabulary. Add three "do not miss" moments flagged separately.
```

Make it yours: Build one per function and save them. Next season you edit the list instead of rebuilding it.

51. The family group-photo list

The thing that saves 45 minutes on the wedding day.

```
Create a family group-photo plan for an Indian wedding for [STUDIO NAME]. Include: a suggested order (largest groups first, then break down to smaller), a realistic time estimate per group, a plan to appoint one family "coordinator" who knows everyone, a note to shoot group photos immediately after the main ceremony while everyone is still present, and a short WhatsApp message we can send to the couple asking them to list all the group combinations a week before. Practical, under 220 words.
```

Make it yours: Get the group list in writing a week ahead. On the day, relatives appear from everywhere — the list keeps order.

52. The run-of-day coordination message

Send to the couple and the planner 3 days before.

```
Write a run-of-day coordination message from [STUDIO NAME] to send to the couple and their planner 3 days before a [NUMBER]-day wedding on [DATES]. Include: our crew size and names, our arrival time at each function, the coverage hours booked, our needs on site (a room for gear, a place to charge, crew meals), the point of contact for both sides, and a request for the final timeline. Clear, professional, mobile-friendly, under 180 words.
```

Make it yours: Crew meals and a gear room are not small asks — raise them early, never on the day.

53. The day-before reminder

One message that removes 90% of day-of chaos.

```
Write a day-before WhatsApp message from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple getting married tomorrow. Confirm: our crew and call time, the first function and its location, the outfits for the pre-function portraits, the family coordinator's name, that we have their shot list and group list, and a friendly line to relax and enjoy the day. Under 120 words, warm, reassuring, no last-minute questions that stress them.
```

Make it yours: Send it at a calm hour, not midnight. This message is as much for the family as the couple.

54. Crew briefing sheet

For every wedding, so your team shoots as one.

```
Create a one-page crew briefing sheet for [STUDIO NAME] for a wedding on [DATE] at [VENUE]. Include: crew roles (lead photographer, second shooter, videographer, assistant), each person's responsibilities, the timeline of functions and call times, the key moments that must be covered by two angles, the family coordinator contact, the must-have shot list summary, gear assignments, and the agreed file-naming and backup routine. Scannable bullet format, under 250 words.
```

Make it yours: Brief the crew the evening before, every time. Assumptions are where coverage gaps happen.

55. Venue and logistics checklist

For destination and unfamiliar venues especially.

```
Create a venue and logistics checklist for [STUDIO NAME] for a wedding at [VENUE, CITY] on [DATE]. Cover: travel and stay for the crew, parking and access times, power points and charging, lighting conditions at each function, drone permissions if needed (DGCA-compliant), the venue's photography restrictions, backup gear, weather contingency for outdoor functions, and a contact at the venue. Practical checklist format, under 200 words.
```

Make it yours: Call the venue a week ahead and ask about restrictions in writing. Some ban certain gear or drone use.

56. The must-have moments list

Ask the couple, then brief your crew.

```
Write a short, warm message from [STUDIO NAME] asking a couple to list the 5-8 moments from their wedding that they absolutely must have photographed, with a few prompts to spark ideas (a grandparent's blessing, a sibling's reaction, the father's first look, a specific ritual, a family tradition). Ask them to be specific about who is involved and at which function. Under 110 words, friendly, mobile-friendly. Then list three example entries so they know the level of detail we want.
```

Make it yours: Specific beats general. "Mom's reaction at the varmala" is far more useful than "family moments".

57. Brief for camera-shy family members

A gentle approach note for the crew.

```
Write a short, practical note for the [STUDIO NAME] crew on photographing camera-shy family members at Indian weddings. Include: how to introduce yourself and ask permission, using longer lenses to stay unobtrusive, catching candid moments rather than directing, when to take a respectful step back during emotional or religious moments, and how to reassure an elder who says "I look old, don't take my photo". Under 180 words, respectful, practical.
```

Make it yours: The unguarded candid of a shy grandmother is often the photo the family treasures most.

58. Pre-wedding call agenda

A short call a week out to lock everything.

```
Write a 20-minute pre-wedding call agenda for [STUDIO NAME] to run with a couple a week before their wedding. Cover: finalise the function timeline and call times, confirm the shot list and family group list, confirm deliverables and the delivery timeline, discuss any sensitivities, confirm the balance payment and add-ons, and agree the point of contact on the day. Include the two questions we must ask before the call ends. Bullet format, under 160 words.
```

Make it yours: End the call by confirming the balance payment date. It is far easier now than mid-wedding week.

59. Plan a same-day edit or teaser

A premium add-on that wows the family — plan it so it actually works.

```
You are a wedding cinematographer in India. Create a plan for delivering a same-day edit (SDE) or a 60-second teaser for a wedding on [DATE] at [VENUE]. Include: what to capture early (getting ready, first look, key rituals) so the edit has material; a realistic editing window and the gear and power needed on site; the sequence structure (hook, emotion, couple, celebration, close); where and when to screen it (sangeet or reception); and one honest warning about what can go wrong. Under 250 words, practical.
```

Make it yours: Only sell an SDE if you have the crew and the editing setup for it. Over-promising here backfires publicly.

60. The consent and privacy message

Get written consent for portfolio and social use — every time.

```
Write a short, respectful WhatsApp message from [STUDIO NAME] asking a couple for written consent to feature a few of their wedding photos on our website and Instagram, and to use them in our portfolio. Explain simply: they own their privacy, we will always ask before posting, they can say no or choose specific photos to exclude, and this does not affect their own rights to use and print the photos. Under 110 words, warm, no pressure. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: A WhatsApp "yes" is written consent. Save it with the client's file — it protects you and respects them.

61. The data-safety and backup plan

Reassure couples (and yourself) that the photos are safe.

```
Write a short, plain-language explanation for [STUDIO NAME]'s clients of how we protect their wedding photos: dual-card recording on the day, immediate backup to two drives plus encrypted cloud storage within [X] hours, a copy kept for [Y] months after delivery, and our policy on RAW files. Under 120 words, reassuring and specific, no technical jargon. End with one line on what happens if a file is ever lost (we tell you immediately and replace what we can).
```

Make it yours: Say this to every couple. Data safety is one of the least-asked and most-reassuring things you can offer.

62. Handle a demanding relative on the day

Boundary scripts for the guest who wants to direct everything.

```
Write three short, polite scripts (each under 40 words) for a [STUDIO NAME] photographer to use at an Indian wedding when a guest or relative: (1) keeps asking us to take posed photos during a ritual; (2) tries to instruct our crew about what to shoot; (3) blocks our view to take their own phone photos. Each script should be warm, respectful to the elder, and gently redirect the moment. Indian English, no confrontation.
```

Make it yours: Politeness plus redirection works on almost everyone. Never argue with a relative at a wedding.

7 The Instagram Content Engine

Prompts 63-78 — stay visible in your busiest months

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Instagram is the single biggest source of wedding enquiries in India, and the month you are busiest is the month your grid goes quiet. These prompts build a month of content in one sitting, so you can batch it and keep posting through peak season.

63. The 30-day content calendar

One sitting, a month of posts planned.

```
You are a content strategist for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY] targeting [mid/premium] couples. Build a 30-day Instagram content calendar. Use a mix of: reels (behind-the-scenes, before/after edits, couple stories), carousels (your philosophy, tips for couples, venue features), single photos with strong captions, a testimonial post, and a seasonal post tied to the [2026-27] wedding season. For each day give: format, a working title, and a one-line hook. Post 4-5 times a week. Present as a table.
```

Make it yours: Batch-shoot a month of content on one free afternoon. Do not try to create daily during peak season.

64. Reel script: behind the scenes

Show what it feels like to have you at a wedding.

```
Write a 30-40 second Instagram Reel script for [STUDIO NAME] showing behind-the-scenes footage of a wedding day in [CITY]. Structure: a 3-second hook, then 3-4 quick beats (arriving before sunrise, the first look, the mandap moment, the family celebration), a closing line inviting couples to enquire for [2026-27] dates, and a text overlay suggestion for each beat. Include a trending-audio suggestion and 5 hashtags. Indian English, warm, no clichés.
```

Make it yours: BTS reels convert because they show the experience, not just the photos. Shoot vertical video on the day.

65. Reel script: before / after edit

Prove your editing is worth the price.

```
Write a 20-30 second Reel script for [STUDIO NAME] showing a single wedding photo going from RAW to finished edit. Structure: hook ("this is the same photo"), a fast reveal of the unedited file, the edit in steps (white balance, colour grading, skin tones, crop), the finished frame held on screen, and a closing line about why editing is most of what a couple is paying for. Add a text overlay for each step and a caption. Under 150 words of script plus overlays.
```

Make it yours: Before/after reels are saved and shared heavily. They quietly justify your price without saying a word.

66. Generate 10 scroll-stopping hooks

Hooks decide whether the reel is seen at all.

```
You are a short-form video strategist. Write 10 Instagram Reel hooks (each under 12 words) for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY], aimed at couples planning a [2026-27] wedding. Cover angles: a common mistake couples make, a money-saving tip, a behind-the-scenes reveal, a myth about wedding photography, and an emotional angle. Make them specific to Indian weddings, no clickbait, no fake promises. Then mark which three you would test first and why.
```

Make it yours: Test three hooks on the same footage. The hook usually matters more than the video.

67. Carousel: your photography philosophy

Carousels get saved — saves signal quality to the algorithm.

```
Write a 7-slide Instagram carousel for [STUDIO NAME] explaining our approach to wedding photography. Slide 1: a strong title. Slides 2-6: one idea each (for example, why we shoot available light, why we spend the pre-ceremony hour with the family, why candid matters more than posed, how we handle large family groups, why we deliver a full gallery and not just highlights). Slide 7: a soft call to action for [2026-27] enquiries. Each slide under 25 words. Indian English, warm, insightful.
```

Make it yours: End every carousel with one clear action. Saves are great; enquiries pay the bills.

68. Caption generator with location tags

For the single photos you post between reels.

```
Write 5 Instagram caption options for a wedding photo from [VENUE], [CITY], shot by [STUDIO NAME]. Each caption: under 40 words, tells a small story about the moment, ends with a soft line inviting couples to enquire, and includes a suggested location tag and 4-6 relevant hashtags (mix local and niche, not just #weddingphotography). Vary the tone: one emotional, one playful, one informative, one about the venue, one about the couple's style.
```

Make it yours: Always tag the venue. Couples planning at that venue search it and find you.

69. Build local hashtag sets

Broad hashtags are too crowded; local ones convert.

```
Build 5 Instagram hashtag sets for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY], India. Each set should have 8-12 tags mixing: city + service (e.g. #WeddingPhotographer[CITY]), city + venue or region, style (candid, cinematic), and community tags. Avoid the overcrowded global tags. Explain in one line which set to use for which type of post. Keep the tags realistic and India-relevant.
```

Make it yours: Local tags put you in front of couples actually planning in your city, not photographers worldwide.

70. Post a full wedding story

Full galleries prove consistency, not just one great frame.

```
Write an Instagram post (carousel, 8-10 slides) telling the story of a full wedding shot by [STUDIO NAME] at [VENUE], [CITY]. Slides: the couple and how they met, the getting-ready morning, the key ritual, a candid family moment, the couple portraits, the celebration, the film still, and a final slide inviting enquiries. Give a caption (under 90 words) that tells the story in first person, mentions the full gallery is available on request, and includes a call to action. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Couples want to see complete weddings, not highlight reels. Post one full story every few weeks.

71. Turn a review into a post

Social proof is the cheapest marketing you have.

```
A couple left [STUDIO NAME] this review: "[PASTE REVIEW]". Write an Instagram post (image + caption) turning it into social proof. The caption: thanks the couple by name, references one specific thing they mentioned, adds one sentence of context about the wedding, and ends with a soft invitation to enquire for [2026-27]. Under 90 words, sincere, not boastful. Suggest a simple, elegant visual idea for the post that uses the review text.
```

Make it yours: Ask for a review within two weeks of delivery, when gratitude is highest.

72. Season-opener and festival content

Ride the calendar — the season reopens 21 November 2026.

```
Write three Instagram posts for [STUDIO NAME] tied to the Indian wedding calendar: (1) a season-opener post for the 2026-27 winter season, mentioning that dates reopen on 21 November 2026 and that we are booking; (2) a Diwali post wishing followers well and showing a beautiful wedding moment in festive light; (3) a "new year, new dates" post for January 2027 reminding couples that [DATE RANGE] is filling. Each caption under 80 words, warm, India-specific, one clear call to action.
```

Make it yours: Post the season-opener a few weeks before the rush. That is when couples are finalising vendors.

73. Reel: "how we work"

Explain your process and build trust before the enquiry.

```
Write a 45-second Reel script for [STUDIO NAME] explaining how we work with a couple, from enquiry to album. Beats: first call, planning the shot list, the shoot day, editing and preview, the final gallery and album. Give one line of voiceover per beat, a suggested shot for each, and a closing line inviting couples to enquire. Under 170 words of script. Warm, reassuring, no jargon.
```

Make it yours: A process reel answers the unspoken question: "will this person be reliable?"

74. Turn real DMs into a Q&A post

Answer the questions every couple is afraid to ask.

```
You are the social media manager for [STUDIO NAME]. Here are real questions couples have sent us: [PASTE 5-8 QUESTIONS]. Turn them into an Instagram Q&A carousel or a Reel script. Answer each honestly and simply, including at least one about pricing and one about delivery timelines. Each answer under 30 words. Add a title slide and a closing slide inviting enquiries for [2026-27]. Indian English, warm, no dodging the price question.
```

Make it yours: Answering the price question openly filters out mismatched couples and builds trust with the right ones.

75. Google Business Profile post

The channel couples use when they are ready to book.

```
Write a Google Business Profile post (under 200 words) for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY], for the [2026-27] season. Include: what we shoot, our coverage area and destinations, a line about our style, a call to action to call or WhatsApp us, and a note that [MONTH] dates are booking. Keep it local-SEO friendly (mention the city and nearby areas naturally). Add a suggested short title and three relevant keywords.
```

Make it yours: Google posts expire in a week — repost monthly, and keep collecting reviews.

76. LinkedIn post for B2B referrals

Planners, venues and corporate event clients live on LinkedIn.

```
Write a LinkedIn post (under 200 words) from [PHOTOGRAPHER NAME] of [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY], aimed at wedding planners, venues and corporate event teams. The post should: share one genuinely useful insight from a recent wedding (for example, how shooting with two angles changed the family group-photo process), position us as a reliable creative partner, and invite planners to request our package sheet. Professional, generous, no hard sell. Add 4 relevant hashtags.
```

Make it yours: One useful insight per post beats a portfolio dump. Planners hire people who think.

77. Optimise your bio and highlights

Your profile is your shopfront — make it convert.

```
You are an Instagram growth specialist. Write three options for a bio for [STUDIO NAME], a wedding photography studio in [CITY] specialising in [STYLE]. Each bio: under 150 characters, states who we shoot for and where, includes one proof point (years, weddings shot, or coverage area), and a clear call to action. Then suggest six Instagram highlight names and what each should contain (for example "Full weddings", "Films", "Reviews", "Pricing", "Destination", "About"). Indian English.
```

Make it yours: A "Pricing" highlight saves you hours of DMs. Post one clear package image inside it.

78. Turn one wedding into 20 pieces of content

Maximum output from every shoot you already did.

```
You are a content repurposing strategist for [STUDIO NAME]. From one wedding shot on [DATE] at [VENUE], list 20 content pieces we can create: 4 reels, 3 carousels, 8 single-photo posts, 2 stories series, 1 testimonial post, 1 behind-the-scenes post, and 1 blog or Google post. For each, give a one-line idea and the best format. Keep it realistic with the footage a wedding shoot naturally produces. Present as a table.
```

Make it yours: Never let a wedding produce only one post. One shoot is a month of content if you plan it.

8 Pricing & Business

Prompts 79-90 — run it like a business

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Photography is a craft; wedding photography is a business. These prompts help you price from your real costs, plan peak-season capacity, decide on GST, raise your rates without losing clients, and build the referral and retainer income that carries you through Chaturmas.

79. Raise your prices without losing clients

For when you are fully booked — the honest signal to raise rates.

```
You are a pricing consultant for Indian wedding photographers. [STUDIO NAME] in [CITY] is fully booked for [SEASON] and currently charges Rs. [CURRENT PRICE] for a single-day wedding. Write: (1) a short message to send to past and pipeline clients explaining a price increase from [DATE], framed as investment in quality and delivery, not inflation; (2) guidance on how much to raise (a realistic percentage for a busy Indian studio) and why; (3) how to grandfather existing bookings. Under 250 words total, professional, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Raise prices at a boundary — a new season — never mid-conversation with a live enquiry.

80. Name and position your packages

Names signal level. "Package A" signals nothing.

```
Suggest 5 naming systems for [STUDIO NAME]'s wedding packages, each with three tiers, suitable for an Indian premium wedding studio. For one system, write a one-line positioning promise for each tier that tells the couple who it is for (for example, an intimate single-function wedding, a full two-day celebration, a multi-day destination wedding). Avoid overused names. Explain in one line which system you would recommend for a studio in [CITY] and why.
```

Make it yours: Name tiers for the couple, not the features. "Signature" outsells "Package 2" every time.

81. Build a reels retainer for past couples and brands

Recurring income that fills the off-season.

```
Create a monthly social-content retainer offer for [STUDIO NAME] in [CITY], aimed at past wedding clients, small businesses and event brands who need a steady flow of reels and photos. Include: what is included per month (for example 4 reels, 12 edited photos, 1 shoot day), a monthly price in rupees, a minimum term, what is not included, and how to present it. Then write a short message to pitch it to a past client. Under 300 words, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: A retainer smooths the Chaturmas gap. Four reels a month for a local brand beats one wedding a month of silence.

82. A referral programme for planners and venues

B2B referrals have the highest ticket sizes.

```
Design a simple, professional referral programme for [STUDIO NAME] to offer wedding planners, venues and makeup artists in [CITY]. Cover: how a referral works, what the referrer gets (for example a fixed thank-you amount per confirmed booking, or a free content shoot), how we track it, and the rules (no referral fee on enquiries we already had). Then write the one-page offer you would send a planner. Under 300 words, transparent, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Keep referral terms clean and written. Informal kickbacks get messy fast in this industry.

83. Calculate your true cost per wedding

Most photographers do not know their real margin.

```
You are a financial advisor for small creative businesses in India. Build a cost-per-wedding worksheet for [STUDIO NAME]. List every cost to include: crew fees, your own time for shooting and editing (value it at an hourly rate), travel and stay, gear depreciation, storage and backup, software subscriptions, album printing, marketing and ads, and studio overheads. Show a worked example for a wedding priced at Rs. [X] and calculate the real profit and margin. Under 350 words, table format, Indian rupees.
```

Make it yours: Value your own editing hours in the worksheet. Most studios discover editing is their biggest hidden cost.

84. Peak-season capacity plan

So a full calendar does not become late galleries.

```
Create a peak-season capacity plan for [STUDIO NAME] for the [2026-27] wedding season (heavy windows: 21 Nov-12 Dec 2026, 15 Jan-14 Mar 2027, 18 Apr-12 Jul 2027). Include: how many weddings we can honestly shoot per window without dropping quality, the editing backlog that builds, when to bring in an associate shooter or freelance editor, how to price rush delivery, and a rule for saying no. Present as a short plan with numbers. Under 300 words.
```

Make it yours: A price that only works at thirty weddings produces late galleries. Cap your bookings and protect delivery.

85. The associate / second-shooter model, documented

Scale without losing your brand's quality.

```
Write a short operating procedure for [STUDIO NAME] for working with associate photographers and second shooters. Cover: how we brief them, the standard we expect on coverage and file naming, how we brief them on our editing style, quality checks before delivery, confidentiality and data handling, payment terms, and how we keep the client experience consistent regardless of who shoots. Under 300 words, practical, Indian English. Add one line on what we never compromise.
```

Make it yours: Scaling works only when the SOP and QC are strong. Otherwise one bad associate costs you a referral network.

86. Contract review checklist

A last check before any booking is confirmed.

```
Create a contract review checklist for [STUDIO NAME]'s wedding photography agreement. List the clauses that must be present: parties and date, scope and functions, deliverables with numbers and dates, price and GST clarity, payment schedule, rescheduling and cancellation, force majeure, usage rights and privacy consent, delivery timeline and revision limits, travel and outstation costs, and a dispute-resolution line. For each, one line on why it matters. Under 250 words, checklist format.
```

Make it yours: Read the contract as if you were the couple. Anything you would question, they will question too.

87. The GST registration decision, simply

Know when you must register — and when it is worth it.

```
Explain, in plain language for an Indian wedding photographer, when GST registration is mandatory and when it is optional. Cover: the Rs. 20 lakh threshold (Rs. 10 lakh in special-category states), why many photographers register voluntarily (corporate clients need GST invoices, and input tax credit on gear), that photography and videography services attract 18% GST, and that the rate did not change in the 2025 GST reform. Under 220 words, neutral, and end by telling the reader to confirm with a CA.
```

Make it yours: This is orientation, not tax advice. Confirm your specific situation with a CA before deciding.

88. A compliant invoice for a wedding shoot

The invoice that gets you paid and keeps your records clean.

```
Create a compliant invoice template for [STUDIO NAME] for a wedding shoot. Include: studio name, address, phone, email and GSTIN if registered; client details; a sequential invoice number; invoice date and due date; line items mirroring the package (per function, album, drone, etc.); subtotal; GST at 18% shown as CGST 9% + SGST 9% for intra-state or IGST 18% for inter-state; total; advance already received; balance due; and payment instructions (UPI ID and a payment link). Add one line stating the place of supply is where the shoot happens. Under 300 words, table format.
```

Make it yours: Split CGST/SGST and IGST correctly — using the wrong one is the most common GST error for photographers.

89. Plan your gear, storage and backup budget

The quiet cost that eats margins.

```
Build an annual gear, storage and backup budget planner for [STUDIO NAME]. Include: gear replacement and repair fund (as a percentage of revenue), memory cards and drives, cloud storage for a year of weddings, editing software subscriptions, and insurance. Show a worked example for a studio shooting [N] weddings a year. Explain in one line why an emergency gear fund is not optional in wedding photography. Under 250 words, table format, Indian rupees.
```

Make it yours: A camera fails at the worst possible moment. The replacement fund turns a disaster into a bad hour.

90. Your end-of-season business review

Run it at the end of every season and act on it.

```
You are a business coach for creative studios. Create an end-of-season review questionnaire for [STUDIO NAME] after the [SEASON] wedding season. Ask about: total bookings and revenue, average booking value, which channels brought the most bookings, which weddings were the most and least profitable, where time leaked, delivery delays, repeat and referral clients, and one thing to change next season. End with a simple template to set three goals for the next season. Under 300 words.
```

Make it yours: Do this in the Kharmas gap. Decisions made in a calm month are better than ones made in a rush.

9 Delivery, Reviews & Referrals

Prompts 91-100 — turn one wedding into three

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Delivery is not the end of the relationship — it is the start of the referral. These prompts handle the handover, pre-empt the "where are our photos?" call, and turn every happy couple into reviews, referrals and the next booking.

91. The preview delivery message

A fast preview builds goodwill before the full gallery.

```
Write a warm WhatsApp message from [STUDIO NAME] delivering a preview set of [N] photos to a couple whose wedding was on [DATE]. Under 110 words. Include: a line about which moment you loved shooting, what is in the preview, when the full gallery and film will follow, and a gentle note that the preview is theirs to share. Add one line asking for any early feedback. Indian English, celebratory, no admin talk.
```

Make it yours: Send the preview within days, even if the full gallery is weeks away. Speed here is remembered.

92. The full gallery delivery message

The big moment — make it feel special and useful.

```
Write the full gallery delivery message from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple whose wedding was on [DATE]. Under 130 words. Include: how to access the gallery and download, how long it stays live, how the photos are organised, where to find the film and reels, what the next step is if they ordered an album, and a warm closing line. Add a short "how to choose your album favourites" tip. Indian English, clear and celebratory.
```

Make it yours: Give one clear next step (album favourites, then final payment). Vague handovers delay everything.

93. Album design and proofing message

Keep the album moving so the final payment does not stall.

```
Write a message from [STUDIO NAME] sending an album design proof to a couple. Under 120 words. Explain: how to review the proof, the number of revision rounds included, the deadline to send changes, how long printing takes after approval, and that the final payment is due before the album goes to print. Friendly and clear, no pressure. Indian English. Add a line on what happens if they do not reply by the deadline.
```

Make it yours: Tie the final payment to the album going to print, not to delivery. It pulls cash in weeks earlier.

94. Pre-empt the "where are our photos?" message

A proactive update stops the anxious calls.

```
Write a proactive progress-update message from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple whose gallery is in progress, sent before they have to ask. Under 100 words. Confirm what stage we are at (culling, colour grading, film edit), restate the delivery date, and give one honest line about peak-season workload if it applies. Warm and confident, no apologies unless we are actually late. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Send an update every 7-10 days during editing. An update you volunteer is reassurance; one they have to chase is a complaint.

95. The review request

Reviews are the cheapest marketing you have.

```
Write a short message from [STUDIO NAME] asking a couple, two weeks after gallery delivery, for a Google and Instagram review. Under 90 words. Explain why reviews help a small studio, give the direct links, suggest what they could mention (their favourite moment, the shoot experience, delivery), and add a warm line that we loved shooting their wedding. No pressure, easy to say yes. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: One clear link per platform. Asking for a review is fine; making them hunt for the page is not.

96. The referral ask

One happy couple can introduce three more.

```
Write a warm message from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple who loved their photos, asking them to refer us to friends and family getting married. Under 90 words. Mention that referrals are how we grow, offer a small thank-you (for example a free family photo session or a print) for any friend who books, and include a line they can forward. Grateful, not pushy. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Ask at peak gratitude — right after they see the photos — not three months later.

97. The anniversary re-engagement

A gentle yearly touch that keeps you top of mind.

```
Write a short, warm message from [STUDIO NAME] to a couple on their first wedding anniversary. Under 80 words. Wish them, remind them of one specific moment from their wedding, offer a discounted anniversary or family photo session, and mention we still have their gallery available. Sincere and personal, no sales pressure. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Anniversary couples become maternity, newborn and family clients. A yearly touch pays off for years.

98. The final-payment follow-up

Polite, firm, and effective — get the last instalment in.

```
Write a polite follow-up message from [STUDIO NAME] about a pending final payment of Rs. [X] for a wedding on [DATE], due before [DELIVERABLE]. Under 90 words. Restate the amount and what it covers, give the UPI ID and payment link, state the delivery timeline once it clears, and keep a warm tone. No threat, no apology for asking. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Send it in writing with the amount and a link. Phone calls about money get emotional; messages stay clear.

99. Ask a planner or venue for a testimonial

B2B social proof opens the next set of doors.

```
Write a short message from [STUDIO NAME] to a wedding planner or venue we worked with, asking for a two-line testimonial we can use on our website and in proposals to other planners. Under 90 words. Explain why it helps, suggest what to mention (reliability, coordination, quality), and offer to send them a set of images from the event for their own marketing in return. Professional, generous, Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Give images for their marketing first. Reciprocity is the fastest route to a testimonial.

100. End-of-season thank-you and next-season offer

Close the loop and open the next one.

```
Write an end-of-season message from [STUDIO NAME] to all past clients and enquiries from [SEASON]. Under 110 words. Thank them, share one highlight from the season, let them know the next booking windows ([2026-27] dates), and offer existing clients a small loyalty discount on any future session (pre-wedding, maternity, newborn, family). Warm, personal, not a newsletter blast. Indian English.
```

Make it yours: Send it in the quiet gap between seasons. That is when couples plan the next celebration.

The one habit that beats every prompt in this pack
Reply first, and reply clearly. In a business where a couple messages three studios and books the one that answers with a clear package, speed and clarity are worth more than any single template. The prompts just make being fast and clear easy to sustain.

Appendix A: The 2026-27 Muhurat Dates

A planning signal for your sales calendar

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

These dates are computed from a standard North Indian Vedic panchang (DrikPanchang and MyPandit agree on the 2026 dates shown). Other panchangs and regional traditions differ. Use this to plan your own calendar, staffing and pitch windows — always confirm the couple's final muhurat with their family pandit.

Window	Auspicious dates	Count
November 2026	21, 24, 25, 26	4
December 2026	2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 11, 12	7
Kharmas	13 Dec 2026 – 14 Jan 2027 (none)	0
January 2027	15, 18, 19, 20, 24, 26, 27, 30, 31	9
February 2027	2, 3, 9, 10, 11, 14, 15, 21, 22, 25, 26, 27, 28	13
March 2027	1, 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 14 (15-31 Mar blocked)	7
April 2027	18-28 (9 dates)	9
May 2027	18 dates — the year's densest month	18
June 2027	16 dates	16
July 2027	1, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12 (season closes)	6

Why the panchangs disagree

AstroSage lists zero November 2026 dates; Prokerala lists a different set again; DrikPanchang lists four. Different city settings, calculation methods and family traditions produce different lists. Keep the spread in mind and let the purohit who will actually perform the ceremony confirm the date.

Appendix B: Pricing, GST & Invoicing Quick

The facts you need at quoting time

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Everything below is verified as of October 2026. This is orientation, not tax advice — confirm your specific situation with a chartered accountant.

Item	The position in India
GST rate on photography / videography	18% (SAC 998383 for event photography and videography; 998387 for other photography services)
GST registration threshold	Rs. 20 lakh annual turnover (Rs. 10 lakh in special-category states). Voluntary registration is common for input tax credit and corporate clients.
CGST / SGST vs IGST	Intra-state: CGST 9% + SGST 9%. Inter-state: IGST 18%. The place of supply is where the shoot physically happens — so a Hyderabad photographer shooting a Goa wedding charges IGST.
GST on advances	Liability generally arises when the advance is received. Receipt it and report it in the period received.
Export of services	Zero-rated if you file a Letter of Undertaking (LUT). Do not charge GST to a foreign client; report the export in your returns.
Quoting	Always state whether your quote is inclusive or exclusive of GST. Decide this at quoting time, not at invoicing.
Invoice must-haves	Sequential number, GSTIN, SAC code, place of supply, taxable value, the correct CGST/SGST or IGST split, and the advance already received.
Median listed day rates (mid-2026)	Mumbai Rs. 70k, Delhi NCR Rs. 70k, Pune Rs. 57.5k, Bangalore Rs. 50k, Indore Rs. 42.5k. Price from your costs, not a national percentage.

C

Appendix C: Sample Three-Tier Package Sh

A fill-in template — adapt the numbers to your studio

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Copy this into your proposal and fill in your own hours, crew and prices. Most couples choose the middle tier, so price it as your target.

	Essential	Signature (most chosen)	Heirloom
Best for	Intimate / single-function	Full 2-day celebration	Multi-day / destination
Coverage	[X] hours, 1 day	2 days	[N] days
Crew	1 photographer	1 photo + 1 film	2 photo + 2 film + drone
Edited photos	[Y]+	[Y]+	[Y]+
Film	—	3-5 min highlight	5-7 min film
Reels	—	1 reel	3 reels + same-day edit
Album	—	Printed album	Premium album
Delivery	[Z] days	[Z] days	[Z] days
Starting price	Rs. [__]	Rs. [__]	Rs. [__]

Remember
State GST separately (18%) and whether your price is inclusive or exclusive. Show the [30]% booking advance amount on the sheet so the next step is obvious.

D

Appendix D: Consent, Copyright & Safe-Use

Protect your work and your clients' privacy

DIGITALAIKART · 2026-27 SEASON EDITION

Two simple habits — written consent and careful data handling — keep you out of the disputes that hurt small studios most.

The portfolio consent clause (use it in every agreement)

Suggested wording

The studio holds copyright in all images and films created under this agreement. The client receives personal-use rights to print, share and display the images. The studio will request the client's written consent before featuring any image or film on its website, social media or portfolio, and will honour any request to keep specific images private. Either party may withdraw consent for future use in writing at any time.

Safe-use checklist

- Get written (WhatsApp is fine) consent before posting any couple's photos. Save it with the client file.
- Never paste a client's phone number or full name into an AI tool. Strip personal data first.
- Keep a backup of every consent message for at least as long as you use the images.
- Never let AI write a claim you cannot prove — no invented booking numbers, ratings or results.
- Human-review every AI-generated message for dates, prices and deliverables before sending.
- Respect the family's privacy around religious and emotional moments; ask before posting them.

Red flags to watch for in the season

- A client who refuses any advance and wants the date blocked on a verbal yes.
- A "planner" who asks for a commission that is not in writing.
- A couple asking to pay a large amount outside any invoice or record.
- An enquiry that pushes you to promise specific outcomes or income.
- Any request to shoot or share images of minors or private ceremonies without family consent.
